CHRISTMAS FUND IS OPENED

If ever there was a year when the needy people supplied by the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund cried out in more pitiful appeal than ever before, it is this year, 1918!

Headed by the Boston AMERICAN'S check for one thousand dollars, the fund opens today, and for the fifth successive year the people of Boston are given the opportunity to show their generosity by carrying Christmas cheer into hundreds of homes in this city which otherwise would know little of it; to bring into the wan cheeks of poor widows on Christmas Day the flush of joy and thankfulness and to make sparkle the sad eyes of little children.

Already, two months before Christmas, appeals are coming into the office of the Boston AMERICAN from destitute families, who are even now looking forward to that day and fearfully hoping to be among those who will have a dinner on that day of days. These appeals are extremely pitiable.

Think of it, you who are secure in your Christmas goose or turkey.

You, whose grocer has an annual order to select for you the fattest and tenderest bird in his stock.

You, who take the wife and children.

Grip Epidemic Broken, More Draftees to Be Called Now

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 28.—As further proof that the backbone of the influenza epidemic has been broken in the army camps, it was learned at the office of Provost Marshal-General Crowder today that the calling of selective service men would be resumed next Sunday. No official idea of the size of the call could be obtained, but it was understood the number would be sufficiently large to take in all of the men for October who would have been inducted had it not been for the epidemic. Men who registered on September 12 will be drafted for the first time.

CAPT. HAYES OF HUB WIPED OUT BOCHE GUN NEST

"JUST LIKE BOB."

In these words the wife of Captain Robert Hayes of Dorchester commented today on his heroic action in attacking single-handed and wiping out an entire German machine gun nest in the fighting northeast of Verdun. His bravery saved the lives of many men in his battalion.

It happened in the American advance in Houppy forest, according to the story told by two Boston soldiers, Arthur Foley, of No. 15 Revere street, and Frank Flanagan, of No. 16 Upton street.

During the advance German machine gunners managed to hide until our troops had passed, and then trained their guns on the rear of the Americans. The battalion commanded by Captain Hayes was attacking a ridge, to reach which it had to pass through a narrow ravine. Captain Hayes suspected the trick which the Germans were playing, and ordered a small detachment ahead to draw the German fire and locate their guns.

CLEANED OUT WHOLE NEST.

No guns showed up and Captain Hayes himself entered the ravine. He came right on top of a German machine gun position. The enemy opened fire, but the American officer, un-

FOE REPULSED BY U. S. TROOPS WITH BIG LOSS

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 28.—After artillery preparation lasting half an hour the Germans attacked the American positions between the Bois des Rappes and the Bois de Bantheville, but the sharp fighting resulted in the enemy being repulsed with heavy losses, General Pershing's communique for October 26, made public this afternoon, stated.

He reported the American line everywhere remained unchanged. Since Sept. 28, the first American army has captured more than 20,000 prisoners.

The text of the communique is as follows:

"On the Verdun front yesterday evening the enemy extended to the

BRITONS TAKE 5,620 IN ITALY

London, Oct. 28.—The British, who attacked with the Italians on the Piave river, have captured 5,620 Austro-Hungarian prisoners and 29 guns, the War Office announced this afternoon, in a statement dealing with operations on the Italian front. It follows:

"Last night our line stood south of Stabinza, Spolo di Piave, Borgozanetti, Borgomanaro and Chiesega.

"The prisoners number 5,620. The 14th British Corps took 2,529 prisoners. The 23d Division took twenty-nine guns."

French First Army Hurls Enemy Back on a 40-Mile Front Along the Oise

By International News Service.

Paris, Oct. 28.—General Debeney's First French Army has reached the Guise-Marle road in a new advance to the Oise-Serre sector.

The Germans are falling back over the greater part of the forty-mile front between the Oise and the Aisne. The new gains are threatening the whole enemy line to the east as far as the Argonne forest.

By clearing out the Serre-Oise salient the first army has broken the enemy's line along the last water barrier west of the Meuse.

BRITON'S ECONOMIC PENALTY BARRED

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 28.—If permanent peace is to be established among nations, every obstacle that has stood in the way of international friendship should be cast aside—there should be no economic restrictions "against some nations that did not apply to all nations.

This President Wilson explained this afternoon in a letter to Senator Simmons, was what he had in mind when he enunciated paragraph three of his fourteen peace principles before Congress on January 8. The letter was in reply to a note from Senator Simmons saying that Republican leaders were "attempting to make partisan use of his pronouncement that economic barriers after the war should be removed.

NO ECONOMIC PENALTY.

That the President had in mind no economic punishment for Germany

Vienna Asks for Quick Truce; Wants to Talk Peace

London, Oct. 28.—An Amsterdam dispatch received here this afternoon says that Austria-Hungary, in her new note to President Wilson, agrees to accept all the conditions laid down by the President in his reply of October 19 and to negotiate an immediate armistice and a separate peace. It is stipulated that the armistice is to go into effect promptly on all fronts without awaiting the outcome of any other negotiations.

General Ludendorff, "the brains of the German army," whose resignation as first quartermaster general has caused a sensation in Berlin, is to be tried by court-martial. Ludendorff was forced to resign as a result of differences with Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Prince Maximilian, the German chancellor.

PACIFIC REVOLT IN HUNGARY

Washington, Oct. 28.—Advices from neutral countries reaching Washington diplomats this morning say that a pacific revolution already is an accomplished fact in Hungary. A Hungarian National Council has been formed, it is stated, and has assumed control of the internal affairs of the country.

Up to the present the head of this council appears to be Count Michael Karolyi, delegates of his party and of the Socialists and radicals assembled Friday night and issued a call for the immediate formation of a new Hungarian assembly. They designated Count Karolyi to preside.

The council addressed a pressing appeal to the German people, demanding that an immediate end be put to the present methods of the government and calling for the creation of a new Assembly soon to be elected by the people.

The alliance with Germany at an end.

The Chamber of Deputies abolished.

Acceptance of all of President Wilson's peace principles.

That Hungary must be represented independently at any peace conference and its votes shall be cast for absolute disarmament, obligatory arbitration and the liberty of all nations.

Following adoption of this program, a delegation made up of Count Karolyi, Count Andrassy and former Home Minister Tisza was received by Emperor Charles. They told him of their decision and that the Assembly would assume control of the nation's destiny.

Up to date the Austrian newspapers have refused to submit to censorship.

BULLETINS!

London, Oct. 28.—The Kaiser will issue a proclamation announcing that he will not abdicate, but that, if necessary, he will become hereditary president of the "German republic," with authority like that of the kings of England, Belgium and Italy, said an Amsterdam dispatch to the Daily Express today. The German independent Socialists are again demanding the Kaiser's abdication.

Copenhagen, Oct. 28.—Peace riots took place outside of the Russian legation in Berlin yesterday in connection with five electioneering meetings of independent Socialists, it was learned from that city today. The rioters demanded the removal of the Kaiser and the proclamation of a German republic. The police interferred and made six arrests.

Zurich, Oct. 28.—All of the Austrian archdukes have taken refuge in a castle near Budapest, fearing revolution in Vienna, said advices from the Austrian capital today. Demonstrations are taking place in Budapest. The Magyar national council has proclaimed its supremacy over the existing authority. Young men are organizing for military purposes.

PASSING OF LUDENDORFF REGARDED AS CONFESSION OF DEFEAT

MUST HAVE SERIOUS EFFECT ON GERMAN ARMY MORALE

Dispatches from European cities today carried the above information. The court-martial story comes from German sources, through Rome. The dispatch says that the trial of Ludendorff has been ordered by Von Hindenburg.

A dispatch from Copenhagen says:

General Ludendorff's resignation as first quartermaster-general of the German army was due to civil control of military affairs and his interference in affairs, according to an explanation given out by Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

"Ludendorff returned to Great Headquarters in order to take leave of the army. Afterwards Von Hindenburg made his explanation. He declared that Ludendorff had first advocated an armistice, considering the German position desperate.

"Later, said Hindenburg, Ludendorff changed his mind and attempted to interfere in matters of policy, 'as he had often done before.'

"Hindenburg mentioned General Groener as the possible successor to Ludendorff."

According to a Daily Mail dispatch from Copenhagen, Ludendorff is to head a counter-revolution in Germany. German conservatives have started a movement to have him named Chancellor.

Advices from Swiss sources say the retirement of Ludendorff may be followed by a general army staff shake-up and that the formation of a war cabinet is impending.

The London Express prints a Geneva dispatch that Hindenburg is also to resign.

Official Text of German Note Received By Swiss Charge

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 28. — Germany's acknowledgment of President Wilson's note of October 23 was received at the Swiss legation shortly before 11 o'clock today. The note was at once translated. A cursory inspection indicated that the text was practically the same as that sent out by the German wireless.

Officials said that the note, while again emphasizing that the German people actually now are in control of their government, and that it is the people that have initiated the peace negotiations, does not call for any reply by the President at this time.

It is not expected that the President will take action of any sort so far as the German situation is concerned until he has received from the entente allies their decision on the armistice request sent by him following the receipt of the German note of October 20.

It is very plain, officials say, that the German officials, by emphasizing again and again their claimed change in the constitution, hope to impress the President and get him to lighten the terms that will be required as a preliminary to any actual peace.

Officials, however, insisted again today that any armistice terms granted Germany would be of a character that would render the German military and naval machines absolutely impotent and, if accepted, actually mean the end of the war.

COUNCIL TOMORROW.

It is assumed here that the work of completing the conditions on which Germany may secure an armistice will be started at the meeting of the inter-allied war council which is scheduled to begin at Versailles tomorrow, and at which the United States is to be represented by Col. E. M. House, General Tasker H. Bliss and Admiral William S. Benson.

It will be attended by the British, French, Italian and other allied premiers and military and naval commanders. The first thing which will be decided, officials say, is whether any armistice can be granted Germany under existing military conditions.

If one is to be granted, then it is expected the work of completing terms will be begun. While there have been many versions of possible armistice conditions, officials said today that no hard and fast rules have yet been agreed on.

TWO MAJOR QUESTIONS.

There are two questions that will govern, a cabinet official said today. They are:

Can the allies under existing circumstances, with the German army still extremely powerful, agree to the principle of an armistice?

"If this question is replied to in the affirmative, then there are two determining factors. They are how to render the German navy powerless to undertake any surprise raids, to put all submarines out of commission and to compel the demobilization of the German army, and the surrender to the guardianship of the allies of such German centres as would effectively prevent any renewal of hostilities by Germany should she, at the last minute, decide that conditions of peace were such that they could not be accepted. In plain words, it means unconditional surrender by Germany in advance of peace negotiations, no matter how the terms may be camouflaged."

Settlement of questions, in the opinion of this official, is absolutely a military problem on which no one is capable of speaking, but the active military heads of the army and of the navy.

BLOW AT ARMY MORALE.

There were many officials here today who believed that the reported acceptance of the resignation of General Ludendorff as quartermaster-general of the Germany army, meant that Germany would accept any armistice terms that might be imposed by the allies. Her retirement at this time must have a serious effect on the morale of the entire German army. It has been Ludendorff who has been the leader of the Pan-Germanists, although he is understood to have opposed the Verdun and Marne offensives. And if it is true that he has retired from his posts it means that with him will go the entire arrogant German general staff which has been responsible for the conduct of the war.

There is no doubt that Germany is short of all kinds of raw materials. One reason for this has been that the supply which had been drawn from neutral countries has been greatly reduced since the allies took over the offensive. Swedish and Dutch officials who have been pro-German in the past have all changed their positions. This has cost Germany large quantities of raw materials which it previously was able to get from neutral sources.

RIPE FOR A REVOLT.

Officials here believe that the critical moment in the present situation will come before the end of the present week. If Germany really must have peace, and there are many here who believe this, both American officials and members of the diplomatic corps, then she will accept any avenue that will lead to the end of the war, even unconditional surrender.

If her peace manoeuvring has been designed to deceive the allies and thus to gain time, not only has it failed of its purpose, but it will require some real explanation within Germany to the German people. There is no question that Germany is ripe for a revolt, and if it can be shown that the officials have been misleading the people, nothing can prevent an actual revolution, in the opinion of officials here.

The bold declarations of Maximilian Harden in an interview with the Berlinske Tidend's Berlin correspondent in which he said: "Wilhelm II. has been a film hero with Germany the vulgar cinema sowing him to the world. We sit upon the ruins of thirty years of Hohenzollern policies," coupled with his denunciation of the Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest treaties, shows the trend of the radical thought in Germany in the opinion of nearly all officials here. It is believed here that the socialists are about to serve notice on Germany proper that a republic must be formed. Whether they could force this appears doubtful from all information that can be gathered here, but they will force more radical reforms, officials say, than have so far been considered by the German rulers.

No matter what may transpire in Germany, officials said today that nothing would be permitted to interfere with the absolute harmony between the entente allies and the United States. With Colonel House on the ground in Paris, it is expected that allied diplomatic unity of action will be secured from now on.

Meaning of Armistice Interpreted at The Hague

Following are the stipulations regarding armistice agreed upon at the First Hague Convention (1899):

Paragraph 36.

An armistice suspends military operations by mutual agreement between the belligerent parties. It its duration is not fixed, the belligerent parties can resume operations at any time, provided, always, that the enemy is warned within the time agreed upon, in accordance with the terms of the armistice.

Paragraph 37.

An armistice may be general or local. The first suspends all military operations of the belligerent States; the second, only those between certain fractions of the belligerent armies, and in a fixed radius.

Paragraph 38.

An armistice must be notified officially, and in good time, to the competent authorities and the troops. Hostilities are suspended immediately after notification, or at a fixed date.

Paragraph 39.

It is for the contracting parties to settle, in the terms of the armistice, what communications may be held on the theatre of war, with the population and with each other.

Paragraph 40.

And serious violation of the armistice by one of the parties gives the other party the right to denounce it, and even, in case of urgency, to recommence hostilities at once.

Paragraph 41.

A violation of the terms of the armistice by private individuals acting on their own initiative only confers the right of demanding the punishment of the offenders, and, if necessary, indemnity for the losses sustained.

Vienna Statement Claims Storming and Recapture of Famous High Positions

London, Oct. 28.—Austro-Hungarian troops have stormed and recaptured Monte Pertica, Monte Asolone and Kuppe, from the Italians, said an Austrian War Office statement, received from Vienna.

The Italian War Office, in an earlier communique, stated that all the Austro-Hungarian counter attacks were repulsed.

ALLIES CAPTURE 126,515 MEN IN MONTH

By FLOYD MacGRIFF,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Oct. 28.—The allies have captured 126,515 prisoners and 2,065 guns on the western battle front so far this month, divided as follows:

British—51,900 prisoners and 800 guns.

French—38,000 prisoners and 865 guns.

Americans—24,415 prisoners and 200 guns.

Belgians—12,200 prisoners and 200 guns.

The most important sector of the western front during the past week was the district between the Scarpe and Oise rivers, where the allies are hammering the German centre. These blows are expected to force retirements northward, past the Escaut River, at the same time southward behind the Oise.

The immediate task of the British is to outflank the region of the Canal du Conde as far as Mons. This would result in the retirements mentioned.

The Italian offensive in the Trentino region, where the left flank rests, should progress at least ten miles, making secure the flank which guards all of the lateral lines of communication.

This movement probably will be carried out before an attempt is made to drive the Germans from the Venetian plains.

The Austrian morale is known to be low and with a simultaneous blow on the front of the Danube river the allies should be able to free all Italian soil before there are any peace negotiations.

Germany's Sincerity Is Doubted in Comment of London Newspapers

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 28.—Doubt as to Germany's sincerity in the latest peace note to President Wilson was expressed by some newspapers today.

"Discussion of peace terms at this time would be a trifle immature," says the Post. "There has been no change of heart on the part of Germany. If the Germans mean business, let them go out to Marshal Foch with the white flag."

"The war is not yet over," warns the Times. "It may be far from over. It is up to Germany to make her petition to Marshal Foch."

"We hope and believe that the allies will not do anything foolish by announcing armistice terms now," said the Daily News. "The sword is still in the hands of the autocrat. We must continue until it is broken."

The Chronicle took the attitude that the German rejoinder, in effect, is an unqualified acceptance.

"Ludendorff's resignation is proof of the significance of Solf's note," added this paper.

"The German government has solemnly and definitely repeated its adherence to President Wilson's principles," said the Daily Express.

(The German note called attention to the political reforms made in Germany, stated that peace negotiations were being carried on by a government of the people and added that Germany was now awaiting the terms of an armistice).

War Summary

The capture of Aleppo, announced in an official communication from General Allenby, is of far-reaching importance. By this single stroke the positions occupied by the British army operating in Syria have been made safe and the communication lines of the Turkish forces in Mesopotamia have been severed.

Aleppo, a great commercial city since the Middle Ages, has been the chief base of supplies of all Turkish forces operating in Asia against the British, and was a point of first importance on the projected Berlin to Bagdad railroad, the backbone of the Kaiser's scheme for world dominion.

Just north of the city is the railway junction of Killiz, where the main trunk line from Constantinople splits, running eastward to Bagdad and south to Damascus. This place will, of course, be made the immediate objective by General Allenby, if, indeed, it is not already in his hands at this writing.

Before Turkey entered the war, the railroad from Constantinople had been completed as far eastward as Adana, about 100 miles west of Aleppo, while the Aleppo-Bagdad railway had been partially built and the line to the south had been carried well beyond Damascus. The latter is now entirely in British possession, while important portions of the former have been captured by General Marshall.

The advance effected by the army of General Mangin between the Oise and Serre rivers is the most important development on the western front, but must be carried further to bring complete contact between the French forces operating in this sector and the British east of Valenciennes. In the meantime the Allies in Belgium are marking time, waiting for the more southerly portions of the battle line to be carried forward so that further advances may be safely made without undue exposure of the armies' flanks.

Details received from the Italian front indicate complete success of the long-awaited drive against the Austrians in its initial stages. The Italians are well to the east of the Piave and are forcing the Austrians back, while on the Asiago plateau in conjunction with British and French units their operations are everywhere succeeding.

Well-Rounded Boche, Too Fat to Fight, Is Glad of Capture

With the American Army Northwest of Verdun, Oct. 28.—Perhaps the jolliest German prisoner the Americans have yet captured is a forty-two-year-old orderly with a well-rounded stomach, who was slightly wounded above the belt in fighting northeast of Verdun. He is now in one of our hospitals.

"I am too old and entirely too fat to fight," was the plaintive comment of the German. "That American barrage fire yesterday was terrible. Not even a cootie could have escaped in it. There I was standing out like a sausage balloon and three minutes after your artillery started up I got hit."

aided, attacked them and wiped out the entire group.

But the captain is a modest hero. He never mentioned the incident in letters to his wife, and the first knowledge his family had of the affair was when an AMERICAN reporter called today at their home, No. 1 Mather street. Here Mrs. Hayes lives with their two children.

"Could I have a picture of the captain?" Mrs. Hayes was asked.

"What is it now?" she smiled, "his promotion from lieutenant to captain?"

"No," said the reporter, "Something different."

"He isn't killed?" The question came quickly. It was more a demand than a question.

"Captain Hayes has been cited in the war news for extreme gallantry in action. He saved his regiment," she was told.

"JUST LIKE BOB."

For a minute the wife stood without speaking. Then a smile came to her lips.

"It was just like Bob," she said.

In answer to the reporter's questons, she continued:

"Bob" was born in Albany, N. Y., in 1883. At the age of 20 he enlisted in the army. The first action he saw was on the Mexican border in 1916. At that time he was a lieutenant in the Fighting Ninth Regiment. The minute the word came for his regiment to entrain for the border, Bob was all eagernes. He returned home after nine months in Texas, mad because there was no fighting.

"Then came the entrance of our country into the war. Bob kissed the children aand me goodby and sailed away as a lieutenant in the 101st Regiment.

"I receive lettess from him regularly, but he never speaks of himself. Why, I never even knew he had been promoted from lieutenant to captain until I read of it in the papers!"

"And what do you think of his new feat of bravery?" she was asked. For the second time a little smile played around her lips, and for the second time she answered:

"It was just like Bob."

THE THIRD GROUP of films depicting the beloved forms and faces of soldiers' relatives will be taken on Sunday, November 3, at 2 p. m., at Mission Hill Playground, Tremont street, near the Mission Church. This third chapter of the "Smiles Across the Sea" movie will include relatives residing in Wards 14 and 15, under the jurisdiction of Draft Divisions 14 and 15.

Other appointments, at the rate of three a week, during the next six weeks, will successively include in the "Smiles" film all soldiers' relatives in Boston and several suburbs.

Read the Boston AMERICAN every day to learn when your district will be filmed.

The tentative days set for the filming of Boston include every Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

There is no expense connected with the taking of the pictures. All costs and responsibility will be assumed by William Randolph Hearst and the International Film Service, Mr. Hearst's great moving picture organization. # BATTLE TO OPEN ROAD TO VIENNA

Beyond the Piave lies Austria and the road to Vienna.

The offensive suddenly launched by the Italians and their British and French reinforcements on the Alpine heights, between the Piave and Brentna Rivers, against the Austrian line may be the first step in a plan of Generalissimo Foch to bring Austria now to her knees. An advance through Austria, of course, would also menace Germany's southern frontier.

Napoleon, toward the close of his military career, had a bold plan of invading Austria by way of Italy, with Vienna as his objective.

This was after his return from the Island of Elba early in 1815. His brother-in-law, Murat, went over to his standard. But Murat and his Napolitans were soundly thrashed by the Austrians at the little village of Tolentino, thirty miles southwest of Ancona, on May 3, 1815. Five months later Murat was executed at Calabria—on the unlucky 13th of the month, by the way—and the projected invasion of Austria was off. Napoleon's military affairs, meanwhile, had been wound up forever at Waterloo that Summer.

Historians tell that Napoleon's plan, if everything had gone well with him, was to strike into Austria from Italy by way of Carniola, the south Austrian province. Thence he presumably figured on a dash northward through Carinthia and Styria into the province of lower Austria, where Vienna is located.

From the Piave loop, where the present Italian-Austrian battle line crosses the river, northeast to Vienna, is about 250 miles.

SIGNIFICANTLY TIMED.

The Italian drive comes at a significant time. The Austrian morale is weakening. Since the crushing defeat on the Piave four months ago and its blow to the military spirit, successive internal troubles in Austria-Hungary have aggravated the political unrest.

In addition, the Italian smash has apparently been scheduled to coincide with the advance of the Allies up through Serbia and toward the Danube.

It appears like the final "pinch" against wavering Austria-Hungary. From a purely military standpoint it would seem like an unusual time of year to launch an offensive on the upper Piave. It is out of season, so to speak. The early Alpine snows are due there already, making operations more and more difficult.

It may be, however, that Foch figures that the snows, by blocking the Austrian rear lines of communication and supply, will help the Italians as much as hinder them.

TIME FOR RUSH.

But, in a broader military sense, the time is opportune to try on Austria what prize fighters term "rush" tactics.

Where can Emperor Charles obtain reinforcements with which to help his Italian front in case of a reinforced and attacking enemy? Echo answers: "Where?" Not from Germany. Not from the retreating Balkan forces. Not from the interior or home field, already boiling with discontent and civil unrest.

In applying this "squeeze play" to Austria, Foch is doing just what the German High Command started to do last Summer on the Italian stage.

Early last June the German offensive in France had reached the Marne and by desperate, heart-breaking work by the Allies, had been held.

The Austrian offensive in Italy was launched on June 15. It crossed the Piave and swept over part of the Montello Plateau to the north. But late in June the reinforced Italians struck back so fiercely that they hurled the enemy back across the Piave, except for some river islands in the Montello bend of the stream.

LOSSES TERRIFIC.

The Austrian losses were terrific, running to 300,000 casualties. So the plan to hammer Italy collapsed.

Since the failure of that Austrian smash General Diaz, the Italian commander, has been steadily strengthening his positions in preparation for the call that might be made upon him by Foch to strike again.

It will be noticed that, whereas the Germans shorten their battle front the more they retire in France, the Austrians will lengthen their line by falling back in Italy. The longer the line the more men required to keep up the original strength per mile And Austria has no resources upon which to draw in order to fatten a thinning line.

The question is raised whether Diaz plans merely to outflank the Austrian positions from the Monte Grappa Plateau eastward and southward to the Adriatic.

A indicates where Italians, French and British are driving the Austro-German armies between the Piave and Brenta rivers in Northern Italy. B shows route of invasion of Austria, which Napoleon proposed to make in 1815, after his return from Elba. The French Emperor's plan, which involved junction with the army of Joachim Murat, King of Naples, was frustrated by the defeat of the latter's forces by the Austrians at Tolentino and his own downfall at Waterloo. The location of Tolentino, where Murat's Neapolitans were crushed, is marked by C.

SENATOR LODGE STARTS FOR BOSTON TONIGHT

Washington, Oct. 28.—Senator Lodge, Republican leader of the Senate, will leave Washington for Boston tonight. The minority leader called off his arrangements for departure Saturday night because of the seething political situation created by the President's appeal for a Democratic Congress.

BRITISH CHURCH LEADER SPEAKS FOR BELGIUM

"As long as decent red blood is in England and America Belgium shall have her resurrection," said Rev. Arthur T. Guttery, president of the Free Church Council of England, to Boston ministers today in Park Street Church. He was discussing reconstruction work after the war.

"I desire to call you Americans brothers and to make you feel that what I'm going to say is in the family sense," he continued.

"I declare that these two nations, England and America, are one in blood and in keenness and in hope of victory. We've had our differences in history. The difference began as all differences begin in the family, over the tea table. The tea that you brewed in Boston Harbor has given us a new lease of liberty.

AT WAR FOR SOUL OF EUROPE.

"I have not come here to a strange land, but to brothers. Let us look at our problems in the spirit of brothers.

"We are at war for the soul of Europe. We are not at war for empires, but we are at war to give the soul of Europe a chance.

"Belgium shall live in hostory for spirituality of the nation's life. Belgium lives today by reason of its soul.

"'I have lost my country, but I've kept my soul,' exclaimed King Albert. Don't forget what we owe to Belgium and her scorn of bribes.

"When we get to Berlin, the crowning honor shall come to Belgium heroes, not merely to Tommies or Poilus or Yankees. We are at war against crime piracy and arson. I shall never consent to a peace that will run the risk of making our boys' dying a mere mockery. The dying of British boys made the American world worth saving.

WORK FOR SUFFRAGE.

"Our spiritual resources are to prove mightier. There is to be a new hope for the churches. We are coming to the time when creed and dogma will not count for much. When the boys come we will not ask them what do you believe but what do you choose?

"We want less journalism and more evangelism in the modern pulpit. There can be a democracy under a crown, for democracy is not made entirely in a republic. No nation is thoroughly democratic that leaves half of the country outside of the vote."

The Rev. Frederick Lynch of New York defines what the churches and ministers were doing in war time.

D. D. Addison, rector of All Saints' Church, Brookline, presided.

ECONOMIC TERM IS EXPLAINED BY WILSON

Would Have No Conspiracy to Punish a Nation Through Separate Groups

was indicated when he told Senator Simmons that experiences of the past "have taught us that the attempt by one nation to punish another, by exclusive and discriminatory trade agreements, has been a prolific breeder of the kind of antagonism which oftentimes results in war, and that if a permanent peace is to be established among nations every obstacle that has stood in the way of international friendship must be cast aside."

To pervert this great principle, the President says, and to "inject the bogey of free trade, which is not involved at all," is to attempt to "divert the minds of the nation from the broad and humane principles of a durable peace."

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER.

The letter follows:

Dear Senator: I am glad to respond to the questions addressed to me by your letter of Oct. 26. The words I used in my address to the Congress of January 8, 1918, were:

"'The removal, so far as possible, of all economic barriers and the establishment of an equality of trade conditions among all the nations consenting to the peace and associating themselves for its maintenance.'

"I, of course, meant to suggest no restrictions upon the free determination by any nation of its own economic policy, but only that whatever tariff any nation might deem necessary for its own economic service, be that tariff high or low, it should apply equally to all foreign nations; in other words, that there should be no discrimination against some nations that did not apply to others.

ALL NATIONS FREE.

"This leaves every nation free to determine for itself its own internal policies and limits only its right to compound these policies of hostile discriminations between one nation against another. Weapons of economic discipline and punishment should be left to the joint action of all nations for the purpose of punishing those who will not submit to a general program of justice and equality.

"Experiences of the past among nations have taught us that the attempt by one nation to punish another by exclusive and discriminatory trade agreements has been a prolific breeder of that kind of antagonism which oftentimes results in war, and that if a permanent peace is to be established among nations every obstacle that has stood in the way of international friendship should be cast aside. It was with that fundamental purpose in mind, that I announced this principle in my address of January 8.

HITS AT PARTISAN SCHEME.

"To pervert this great principle for partisan purposes and to inject the bogey of free trade, which is not involved at all, is to attempt to divert the minds of the nation from the broad and humane principles of a durable peace by introducing an international question of quite another kind.

"American business has in the past been unaffected by a policy of the kind suggested, and it has nothing to fear now from a policy of simple international justice. It is indeed lamentable that the momentous issues of this solemn hour should be seized upon in an effort to bend them to partisan service.

"To the initiated and discerning the motive is transparent and the attempt fails. Sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

west side of the Meuse his effort to wrest from our troops the gains of the preceding days. In the region of Bantheville, after artillery preparation lasting half an hour, he attacked our positions between the Bois des Rappes and the Bois de Bantheville.

FOE BEATEN BACK.

"After sharp fighting he was repulsed with heavy losses, our line remaining everywhere unchanged.

"North of the Tiber our troops have organized the ground won in yesterday's local attacks and are now established in positions in the southern portion of the Bois de Bourgogne. On both banks of the Meuse artillery fire continued heavy throughout the night.

"The battle being fought by our first army north of Verdun, which today enters upon its second month, is continuing with incessant severity, frequently rising to a pitch of extreme violence. On the entire front of twenty-five miles the enemy is opposing to our successful attack a determined resistance, made necessary by the great importance to him of this sector, and made possible only by the constant reinforcement of his hard-pressed divisions.

TAKE 20,000 PRISONERS.

"Besides having inflicted on the enemy severe losses in killed and wounded we have captured on this front since September 26 more than 20,000 prisoners, and in the course of our advance over 150 guns, nearly 1,000 trench mortars and several thousand machine guns have fallen into our hands."

EXTRA DAYLIGHT HOUR SAVES CANDLELIGHT

New Schedule Gives "Old Sol" a Chance to Shine for Breakfast

"Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light——"

You can today—you couldn't Saturday.

Didn't you enjoy it, that extra hour of slumber? That first guilty feeling that you had overslept, when the trusty alarm went off and you opened your eyes upon real daylight? That reassuring glance at the clock?

Did you spring out of bed caroling "Good morning, merry sunshine?" (For you knew that the merry sunshine was somewhere behind the fog.) Did you gambol joyfully down cellar to shake the furnace, remembering how on Saturday you had to grope your way and barked your shins on the apple barrel? Did your cold bath seem not quite so bleak and drear?

Today a few hundred thousand Bostonians had breakfast by Old Sol instead of by an electric bulb. Oh, yes, it was foggy; but still, the light that came in the windows was certainly not furnished by a local company at so much per thousand feet and only five cents discount for cash.

BREAKFAST WITH OLD SOL.

Stenographers going to work felt like bankers; and the bankers felt like—well, probably like bankers. At any rate, they did not notice the change so much as people who have to get up at 6 and be in the office by 8. To these, an extra hour of daylight at the "front end" of the day is a real boon.

"I've had to curl my hair by gaslight for most two months," complained Tess the typewriter queen as she hung onto a strap on the Elevated. "This was the first day I could see both sides of my head when I did up my Psyche. The gas in my room is on the right side of the dresser, and I always came to the office with loops and ends sticking out on the other side of my head. Wasn't it great to see the whole Marcel? Oh, lady!"

CROW ON OLD SCHEDULE.

Mr. Smifkin's wife got his breakfast ready for him, for the first time since Summer. When the mornings began to get colder and darker, she took to sleeping later; and Smiffy has been boiling eggs and burning toast and brewing muddy coffee for himself for weeks past. This morning friend wife had a change of heart, and now he lays all the blame for his lonely breakfasts on Congress, which first put the breakfast hour at such an ungodly time of day.

Nearly everybody's morning temper was better following the change in time. Only those ... neighborhood of a suburban rooster still had a grouch ... Rooster snaps his fingers (figuratively) at arbitrary changes of the clock. He should worry. He has to crow before sunrise because he thinks that if he didn't the sun wouldn't rise.

That is why commuters who live in his neighborhood don't bother with alarms.

Pawtucket Girl Cited for Doughnuts Cooked at Front

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 28.—"I'm happy to hear my daughter is doing her share to help win this terrible war and of course I am proud of her," said Mrs. Mary T. Bray of No. 178 Pine street, whose daughter, Gertrude Cottrell Bray, has been cited, with two other young women, for their unceasing efforts in furnishing 10,000 Yankee doughnuts each day under trying circumstances at the war front.

Reports say that the three young women fried doughnuts with substitutes and on all manner of improvised ovens, and turned out hot Yankee doughnuts that were devoured with relish by the boys. Mrs. Bray said her letters spoke of cooking in the open on bonfires and everything that would answer the purpose. At times she said the lard was short. That did not bother the girls as they substituted olive oil and sweetened with condensed milk.

A fact:

From all accounts, the most eagerly sought-for cigarette among American soldiers abroad is Fatima. Exact figures to prove this are not available; but, in view of Fatima's known popularity with both officers and men still in training on this side of the water, it would seem to be correct. Below are printed a few typical reports on training camps and army posts, received from our salesmen last month:

FORTRESS MONROE, Old Point Comfort, Va.: "Fatima leads in sales"
WEST POINT, Officers' Club: "More Fatimas smoked than any other cigarette"
ROCK ISLAND ARSENAL, Rock Island, Ill.: "Fatima is second best seller"
CAMP MERRITT, Dumont, N. J., Officers' Club: "Fatima is largest-selling cigarette"
CAMP ZACHARY TAYLOR, Louisville, Ky.: "Fatima is most popular high-grade brand"
CAMP UPTON, Yaphank, N. Y.: "Fatima is called here 'the officers' cigarette'"
CAMP GORDON, Atlanta, Ga.: "Fatima is one of the best sellers among the better brands"
CAMP SHERMAN, Chillicothe, Ohio: "Fatima is second biggest-selling cigarette"
CAMP MORGAN, Mobile Bay: "Fatima is leading seller here in its class"
FORT WADSWORTH, N. Y: "Most officers smoke Fatimas; very popular also among the men"
FORT SILL, Oklahoma, "School of Fire": "Fatima is second in point of sales"
CAMP SHERIDAN, Montgomery, Ala.: "Fatima outsells all other high-class brands"
FORT RILEY, Kansas, Medical Officers' Training Camp: "Fatima is by far the biggest-selling cigarette in camp"

FATIMA

A Sensible Cigarette

Army training makes the mind quick and alert; and army men—exactly like quick-minded civilians—naturally choose a cigarette, not alone for its good-tasting qualities, but also for the fact that it does not disturb a man in any way, even if smoked—as so many soldiers do—almost steadily throughout the day.

MARINES TELL OF CALL TO SAVE PARIS

Fighting Blood Boiled by Sight of Drazzled, Dirt-Stained Refugees

By HAZEL CANNING.

"Now mind—you're not going to make no heroes of us—we fellers won't stand for that hero stuff. We're marines, that's all, and no poetry. Get the idea?"

Half a dozen youngsters, khaki clad, overseas caps under their arms, hands or feet in bandages; crutches beside their chairs, clustered together over at the Red Cross house, at Naval Hospital, Chelsea, and held up a forefinger in unanimous warning.

"So, mind you, no hero stuff! We're just marines.

"Just marines" were, by this time, all about, husky young Americans, Westerners mostly, bright-eyed, tense muscled, even, at last reminiscent. And confidential—about tall happenings at Chateau-Thierry last Spring, when American marines, on open ground, made of their young bodies an opposing wall, and the German savage was swept back from Paris. But they speak for themselves.

"The call came to a little French village at dusk, one night, that we were due for the front," explained Sergeant J. H. Berlin, 58th Company, 5th Regiment, whose home is in Michigan.

TOUCHED BY SIGHTS.

"Well, it wasn't an hour before we were on the hike toward Chateau Thierry. The dawn came, we still marching. And with the dawn we, the army going to the front, met others, the army coming from it. Thousands they were, old men, women, and dirty faced kids. With baby carriages—to which the family goat was led; with great bundles, that contained the family wash and a hen or two. They were the refugees, draggled, dirt-stained, utterly depressed. And, as we saw them in the cold dawn, the feeling came, 'my God, that such misery is possible, in a decent world.' Say, lady, ever see that picture, 'Tell It to the Marines?'" Berlin stopped, filled with the import of all he had seen and been a part of.

The lady had. "Well, that's just the way we fellers felt, hiking it, at dawn, to Chateau Thierry, just like that marine, taking off his coat, fighting mad. The guns were booming, then, miles ahead.

"And we were sweating to get at the devils who had made such misery possible."

One young American, very eager, talked fast. Other young Americans nodded in solemn agreement. So the advance went on. "And as we were coming right up to the front, we passed through Belleau Wood. There we stacked our packs, 100 pounds that we had tramped under for two nights and a day. And then, head on, we made for the front lines. There they came on running."

ORDERED TO FALL BACK.

"Who," was the question, "the Germans?"

"Not the Germans, but the Blue Devils. They had been ordered to fall back to the second line, held by us. So they yelled, mistaking happenings. "Beaucoup Boches; pas bon; fini de la guerre," too many Germans; too bad; the war is done for."

For they thought the end had come, there, at dusk, at Chateau-Thierry, when the Boche had pushed ahead for weeks, then, and the orders had come to retreat still more. Our Lieutenant, Whitehouse, brought us orders from headquarters.

"Beaucoup the devil," said he. "Boys, we establish our line here; we hold it here, at whatever cost. To h——l with them. 'Excuse me, lady, but we all meant it. So that was the way we started things at Chateau Thierry, where Paris was saved."

Which was sturdy talk, straight from sturdy hearts. At the Naval Hospital in Chelsea there are fifteen marines who have not received any pay for six months.

They are down to "rock bottom," and they are "bumming smokes." They heard that their friends had sent money to the AMERICAN and that tomorrow "smokes" would arrive.

Whereat interest from the circle; and a coming to life. "Now you're talking," said they, "we could use—those smokes."

19 GAMBLERS FINED, ONE MAN SENT TO JAIL

Clinton, Oct. 28.—Seventeen young men paid fines of $5 each, two of $15 each and one was sent to jail for four months by Judge Charles Mayberry in the District Court today. All were charged with being at a crap game Sunday afternoon. They were caught by Chief of Police J. F. McGee and his officers when a guard left by the players to give notice of police approach deserted his post.

BOSTON AMERICAN CHRISTMAS BASKET FUND

dren and go out into the country on Christmas Day for Yuletide festivities at grandfather's; to eat turkey and vegetables raised on the place and served on the big dining table before the fireplace with a bunch of holly hanging above the board, while the firelight glitters on the silver and shines dully on the pewter ranged on the old sideboard.

And you, too, you flat dweller, who, for this day at least, loosens up and takes the missus to a good hotel on that day to be served prime Vermont turkey by an obsequious flat-footed waiter in a warm and cheerful dining room. The only worry you have in connection with your Christmas dinner is worrying which hotel you will pick out.

And just while you are thinking about all this, waste a thought on a poor pinched little widow woman with two small kids who live in a little dark damp room up four flights of stairs on a squalid street just off the water front.

Three months ago her husband was killed by a falling derrick at the docks and with him went the support of the little family.

The room is cold and a wet drizzle sifts through the broken window pane. The two children are in bed to keep warm while the mother sits huddled in a chair as far as possible from the broken window and thinks of things that might have been.

The furniture wouldn't interest a junk man. The cracked and broken stove is dark and cold, and on the shelf in the corner is half a loaf of bread, a couple of withered turnips and part of a pint of bluish milk. In the bed the children are fretting and asking for their dinner.

And it is Christmas day!

CHANCE FOR ALL TO HELP.

If it were in your power, wouldn't you wave the magic wand that would send bounding up those stairs a man bearing a basket full of Christmas goodies? Chicken that the widow has forgotten the flavor of and which the children never tasted more than twice in their lives? Nourishing hot soup? Steaming, nerve-repairing tea?

You know you would!

And here the wand is ready to your hand. Subscribe to the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund and carry this welcome into a home—two homes—as many homes as you can spare the money to help.

Recently a man came into the office of the AMERICAN where preparations for handling this fund were under way, and scoffed.

"Christmas basket fund!" said he, "this year? Why, there aren't any poor this year, they're all rich and working in munitions factories." And he really believed it.

Unthinkingly that man, allowed to go on with such talk, would do incalculable harm to thousands of poor and deserving people. He is in exactly the same category as the senseless person who goes about unknowingly spreading German propaganda. It is a cruel and wicked falsehood.

If this man had taken the trouble to think about it he would have seen that the poor do not all work in war industries, but that they are terribly affected by the higher cost of living. And he would have seen that the very poor, whose incomes have not been increased by stimulated war prosperity, are in a sadder position than ever in their lives.

The rise in the prices of foodstuffs, the shortage of coal, the restriction of charities due to people putting their money into Liberty Bonds, these and other causes have left them poorer than they ever feared to be.

POOR HAVE FELT WAR.

Five years ago the very poor could buy the sort of meat which butchers saved out for dog meat and make semi-nourishing, if unpalatable, stews out of it. But now there's no more dog meat, for these cuts are ground up and used in other ways and cost what people used to pay for sirloins.

No. The poor, above all people, have not profited by the war, but have felt it the worst.

For this reason the Boston AMERICAN starts off this fund with a $1,000 check and urges everybody to help.

And if you, sir, or madam, have set aside a little sum this year to aid in some worthy charity, do not overlook this definite means of letting your money do actual, present good.

USES CORN SUGAR TO "FROST" CAKES

A new method of making frosting for cake, which if adopted by bakers and housewives will result in the saving of a million pounds of cane sugar a month, has been evolved by William J. Gourley of Brookline, a member of the State Food Administration.

He is using corn sugar as a substitute for cane. Samples of angel cake and other sweetstuffs made with the substitutes are said to have been of superior quality. Corn sugar wholesales at 7 cents a pound, cane at 10 cents. Mr. Gourley will shortly give his recipe to the public.

A Well Known Actress Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Simple Home Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams, the well known American actress, who was recently playing at the Imperial Theatre in St. Louis, Mo., made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or any druggist can put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. This is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

WHY IT IS A GREAT PEACE STOCK

C. W. BARRON SAYS IN HIS BOOK

The Mexican Problem

No country in the world needs closer relations with the oil development of Mexico than the United States. The future demands not only redemption of the Mexican man of the soil, but the redemption of the American farmer as well.

* * * * *

The redemption of "the man with the hoe" will come through the gasolene motor that will plough spring and fall, cultivate all summer, chop wood in the winter, and not "eat its head off."

The ambition of Henry Ford is a gasolene tractor within reach of the farmer. Success here would mean more for the world than all gasolene motor development to date.

It would solve the labor problem on the farm; enable the individual farmer to hold broad acres, by quick cultivation and crops quickly stored. The result from such prosperity for the farmer would be great stores of food, steadying prices for the world.

The farm power, the food power, the sea power, the world power, cry out for gasolene and fuel oil. The Pennsylvania and Indiana oil fields are failing. California is exhausting pocket after pocket. The great oil area of the world today stretches from Kansas to Tehuantepec. The lightest oil is at both these extreme points. The appearance is that the great central reservoirs are in the Mexican field.

Their conservation is a world-wide necessity. Their protection is the duty of all nations.

The Call of Laudable Ambition

TWENTY-EIGHT years ago, when Benjamin Harrison was our Chief Executive, two young men embarked in the business of selling Fur Garments.

They possessed a slender capital, but a wealth of courage, vision and—shall we say, "idealism"?

Then, the day of Specialization in management of business was not so clearly defined as now, yet these two men had an inherent and abounding respect for each other's ability in the work appointed, and so they made their plans, and worked and worked and worked, and all the time their attention was given not only to the making of better fur garments at a lesser price, but to selling their goods on the conscience-clear plan, and at night they would go to their homes, and, of course, it was inevitable that they never complained of insomnia or sleepless nights, because they had "Ideals" as a sleeping powder, and a more wonderful potion could not be given to man, and naturally they have grown modestly, unostentatiously, and their sales have increased year by year, and this is the only reason:

Because every fur, every needle is threaded with "Idealism" and in future writings about their industry we are going to tell you why the fur business needs "Idealism" more perhaps than it needs fur and satin and thread, and their conscience is printed at the top of this writing and

2 U. S. BOMBERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Machine Is Badly Damaged While Flyers Are Struck by German Bullets

With the American First Army, Oct. 28.—Lieutenant Walter B. Ten Eyck of the famous oarsman family, twenty-three years old, living in Brooklyn, N. Y., and Lieutenant Arthur E. Newell, of Berkeley, Cal., members of the first American bombing squadron organized, have had two thrilling escapes within six days in daylight air raids over the German lines.

Ten Eyck, pilot, and Newell, observer, always ride together. A week ago their plane left at the tip of a giant "V" flying formation in the biggest bombing expedition ever carried out by American flyers, consisting of eighty bombing planes and sixty pursuit machines.

Lieutenant Newell told me the following story:

"We had dropped our bombs and were on our return trip when an enemy Fokker suddenly appeared behind our tail and pumped explosive bullets at us. He crippled our engine.

"Lieutenant Ten Eyck, the fellows call him 'Tenny'—found the stick dead, which means that the lever got no response from the engine. We were 4,000 feet high at the time. There was nothing to do but to coast, hoping to land inside our lines. We did.

"We had another escape when we were the tip-machine of a big formation. We were attacked by three German machines and driven off our course. A lone machine always is a favorite target. They didn't bother another plane in our group, but centred on us.

"I kept working my machine guns while the enemy bullets were whizzing close past us. I was nipped in the nose. Ten Eyck was scratched in the cheek, showing the close call we had. A couple of bullets penetrated our oil tank.

"Tenny tilted the tank so it would hold some of the oil. We lost much of it, but the power held out—how, nobody could explain. It's a mystery how we escaped catching fire.

"On both days Tenny was as cool as a cucumber. He managed to keep the engine going. Two other Germans darted at us from the east, making five peppering us. We landed back in our lines minus our tail which was shot into splinters. We crashed to earth nose down, and it jarred us some but we hopped out none the worse for our experience, with only bullet scratches.

"It's curious how we both had such a narrow escape. If the bullet had gone an inch deeper I would have lost my eye and probably would have been bumped off."

DEVENS ELEVEN TO INVADE HAVERHILL

All-Star Team Is Sure to Make Things Interesting for Army Outfit

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Oct. 28.—There is going to be one hang-up time for the boys in this cantonment who live in Haverhill, Saturday, if the plans now in process of formation are carried out. A committee of representative citizens of that city who waited on army officials here, are authority for the statement. It is reported that Haverhill's energetic Mayor is behind the movement. He is receiving the united support of the leading business and professional men in the undertaking. A tentative program of what is to take place will be laid before the proper authorities in camp the latter part of the week for approval.

On that day, it is stated, the Camp Devens eleven will clash on the gridiron in that city with an all-star team, and Captain Nelligan, camp athletic officer, has warned the soldier players to brush up a little and show the good people of Haverhill how easy it is to vanquish the enemy in that line of sport. The Depot Brigade band will accompany the camp team and urge them on to victory by playing some lively airs.

That red brick dust is a valuable asset to the members of the 13th Company, Fifth Battalion, Depot Brigade, has been proved by the way it is scattered over the different lawns adjoining the barracks. A committee of six stalwart men of that command, dressed in their blue working uniforms, spent a day collecting the dust and then decorated the mounds with it.

A big time is assured soldiers of Jewish extraction who visit the Jewish Welfare House Wednesday evening. The entertainment committee there has arranged an elaborate entertainment. The West End Jazz Band will be on hand with selections of up-to-the-minute music, and Miss Bessie Edelstein, the noted reader, will oblige with a number of thrilling recitations. Miss Adel Charlott, soprano soloist, will render several selections. Sergeant Pearlmutter will preside at the piano, and Sergeant Jaffe of the Seventy-third Headquarter Company promises to tickle the ivories for the dancing feature that will follow. This will be the first of a series of such affairs to be held each week. An educational night is another feature to be held each week.

BOY'S SAVINGS BUYS SMOKES FOR MARINES

Back Bay Child Makes Real Sacrifice to Aid American's Fund

Smokes for marines!

Have you contributed the price of one?

To date the AMERICAN has received $40.38 in cash for the fund and $125 has been distributed through the AMERICAN by girls of the Boston Army Supply Base, to wounded fighters from Chateau Thierry who are now at the Naval Hospital in Chelsea.

The first contribution received in response to the AMERICAN'S appeal for a little luxury fund for these heroes was $15 and six 3-cent postage stamps from girl employes of the United Drug Company in Roxbury.

Through Miss Ruth Joyce a money order for this amount was sent to the AMERICAN and turned over to Mrs. Andrew J. Peters, who is treasurer of the fund.

The contribution that represented perhaps the greatest real sacrifice was brought in by little Jean Neil Hanson of No. 440 Newbury street, Boston, who gave all his savings in a little bank, amounting to $1.95. Jean would rather buy smokes for soldiers than candy or a jack knife for himself. He is of the stuff that makes heroes.

RADIO ELEVEN SEEKS NEXT VICTIM

Open to Meet Any Army, Navy or College Team in Gridiron Test

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Oct. 28.—Radio threw out its chest today and settled down to the speculation of what team would be next to fall under the battle axe of the "buzzers" eleven.

With Hingham safely out of the way, by reason of the 6 to 0 score piled up against the visitors Saturday, Radio continued to maintain its 100 per cent. perfect scoring record for the season, so far as scheduled games are concerned.

Not a single point has been scored against the Harvard eleven since the beginning of the season, and today the challenge stands to meet any college, naval or army football team which should decide to take issue with the shifty Radioites.

Radio enthusiasts regret that a solid football schedule cannot be arranged for its eleven. Owing to the continual graduations of its personnel a schedule is a very uncertain thing. For that reason officials have declined to form a football league or to formulate a definite schedule.

RAID SURPASSES THRILLERS OF MOVIES

Participants Tell Sensational Stories of Clean-Up of Cumberland Roadhouse

Providence, Oct. 28.—Sensational details of the most thrilling vice raid ever made in New England were graphically told by some of the participants today, when men and women from Boston, Springfield, Holyoke and intermediate spots appeared in the United States court as defendants, following the wild morning raid at "Staples Dump," a roadhouse in Cumberland, nine miles from Woonsocket.

Not a detail of the most lurid type of movie thriller was missing from the raid. Indeed there were details even the most imaginative producers might have omitted. From the time Lieutenant Hannibal Hamlin of Worcester demanded the unconditional surrender of the inmates of the house "in the name of the President of the United States," until Lester F. Staples, son of the proprietor, who is alleged to have used a shotgun on the raiding party, was dragged into the police station for medical attention, more of a pulp of flesh than a human being, there was, in movie parlance, "a thrill a second."

RISK DEATH TO ESCAPE.

Guns of all sizes and all calibres spoke with regularity at the early morning party, the military being under orders to "shoot to kill." Although the house was surrounded, the inmates, numbering when the festivities began some seventy-five men and some women, preferred to risk death from the bullets of the raiders rather than face arrest.

Women, hysterical from fear and excitement as the fusilade of shots began, jumped from upper-story windows and crawled from those in the cellar. Men, hatless, coatless and pallid with fear, burst from doors and windows. So fast did the exodus move that the raiding party, waiting for local police reinforcements before forcing an entrance to the house, were unable to cope with the situation.

As fast as they got outside the building the terrified fugitives made for the woods, seeking cover in the underbrush. Shots were fired at the fleeing women and men, and it is thought that some of these bullets found their marks. It is regarded as not improbable that wounded women and men may still be in hiding in the woods. The majority, however, skulked through the woods until dawn and then made their way to the nearest car line.

When, several hours after the sieges of the "dump," as the Staples place has long been known in police circles, the smoke cleared away, the casualties stood at one wounded among the raiders. Charles Caswell, of Lynn, a Watch and Ward man, got a bullet in the leg.

When, shortly after, the besiegers took note of the casualties of the raided, it amounted to one, badly beaten up. Lester F. Staples, who is alleged to have manned the shotgun which wounded Caswell, was found by Dr. Frank H. McLaughlin, a police surgeon, to have been pounded as near a pulp as a man could be and live. Exactly where or how he got his injuries does not appear.

BLACKJACKS AND GUNS USED.

The raiders entered the house, breaking down its doors, after they had been reinforced by the arrival of 74 policemen from Woonsocket. The resistance of the inmates did not cease with the entrance of the authorities. Young Staples is said to have continued to cannonade with the shotgun, and others produced revolvers and blackjacks.

At first the raiders thought all the women had made their escape. Seach, however, revealed them hiding in closets, beneath furniture and elsewhere. Eighteen men and sixteen women who had feared to face the bullets of the raiders in flight, were rounded up. Seven of the girls and twelve of the men were held to answer to charges.

Among those taken into custody was Frank Staples, who for twenty years has run the roadhouse. Previously he ran one called "Grey Gables" between Franklin, Mass., and Woonsocket. Later, on his promise to permanently close the place Staples was released. "Daisy" Davis, Staples' housekeeper was detained.

For some time past it is alleged the Staples place has been the scene of wildest doings. A week ago there was a shooting affray, in which shots were fired at a woman, who, with others had been brought to the place by a Providence taxi driver. Hardly a week has passed without some kind of a battle being staged at the "dump" it is claimed.

The raid was brought about by complaints at Camp Devens that men in uniform were getting liquor there.

SHOW FIRST EPISODES OF "HAND OF VENGEANCE"

Thrilling scene from "The Hand of Vengeance," shown in Boston for the first time today.

In half a dozen leading photoplay houses in Boston and vicinity the first episodes of "The Hand of Vengeance," Gaumont's thrilling ten-part serial, were released today.

This serial differs from former pictures of this type in that it will not be strung out to tedious length, and that there is no padding, slacking of interest or lack of incident from start to finish. The picture was partly made in France, partly in England, in Italy and in New Jersey by the strongest troupe in the employ of Gaumont's French and American companies.

The first episode is important, as it establishes the reason for the strange duel between the forces of law, as represented by Conway Bass, the English detective, and Ultus, the man of mystery, who resides in a house with curious features, and whose outlaw band leads the detectives a picturesque chase. The picture is released by the Gordon Mayer Company.

BILLY SUNDAY MEETINGS ARE EXTENDED

Campaign in Providence to Be Continued Week Beyond Schedule

Providence, Oct. 28.—It has been decided to continue the Billy Sunday evangelistic campaign until Sunday, January 19, one week later than originally scheduled.

Sunday told a tabernacle filled with men all about chickens coming home to roost, and had the audience straining their ears to catch every word dropped by the preacher, who coupled his remarks with an occasional "Nit on your tintype," "Nothing to it," "It's a cinch," "You big mutt," "Get off my toes" and "Good night, nurse."

The evangelist hit every sin on the calendar and offered solutions calculated to purge the system of them. He emphasized his points by gestures similar to a baseball player throwing a man out at second base. When he got at the desired point, he would wind up and start a ball from the ground, finishing the sentence with a whirl, saying: "I'll bet that hit some of you fellows."

BOSSES FEARED G. O. P. INDORSEMENT OF I. AND R., SAYS CAVANAGH

DELEGATES GIVEN NO CHANCE TO ACT

Chief Reason for Calling Off Convention, Declares Republican Senator

That the machine bosses called off the Republican State convention because they feared the delegates would adopt a platform declaring for the Initiative and Referendum and other progressive measures was declared by Senator James F. Cavanagh in a letter made public today.

Senator Cavanagh is chairman of the Joint Judiciary Committee of the Legislature and is the Republican leader of the Senate.

NO PLATFORM AND NO ISSUES.

He declared that the action of the machine leaders is a rash betrayal of the right of free speech and free assembly. He said their excuse that the convention was called off because of the splendid will hardly hold water when contrasted with the fact that the list has been filled with theatres, dances and boxing bouts. That the Republican candidates have no platform and no issues and are left in the unhappy condition of men who are merely running for office was another interesting statement by Senator Cavanagh in the following letter to Chairman George A. Hardy of the Republican State Committee:

"According to published notices the Republican State Committee decided not to hold the Republican State Convention. As the statutes confer on the State Committee of a political party the sole power to call a State Convention, this action on the part of your committee from which there is no appeal, means that the Republicans of Massachusetts are denied the right to assemble in convention, denied the right to adopt a party platform.

"Against this arbitrary action of the Republican State Committee I enter my protest and call upon the committee to hold the convention. In so doing I believe that I voice the sentiments of many of my Republican colleagues in the Massachusetts Senate.

"The reason alleged for not holding the convention is the influenza epidemic and the fear of spreading that disease because of the crowd of delegates. It is difficult to believe that this is the real reason, when health authorities a week ago sanctioned the opening of theatres when dances are taking place, and boxing bouts are being held.

MANY WONDERING.

"The attendance at these amusements is as large as that of the State convention and certainly the atmosphere of the theatre, dance hall or boxing arena is no healthier than that of Tremont Temple, where the State convention was to be held this year. With these facts to mind it is not strange that many are wondering what influenced the committee not to hold a convention and suggesting that some Republican leaders fear to face the discussion and action of delegates on questions like the Initiative and Referendum and Woman Suffrage.

"The action of your committee leaves the Republicans of Massachusetts without a party platform and leaves our candidates to wage a fight for election on individuals with no platform to distinguish them from the Democrats who have held a convention and adopted a platform.

"If we fail to adopt a party platform, say our candidates are partisans and may we not inquire if, having abolished the platform, the next logical step is the abolition of party designation in State elections?

"If the action of your committee in not holding a convention be construed as a declaration in favor of the abolition of party designation in State elections it will receive the commendation of some; if not, it will be condemned by all who believe in the fundamental right of assembly and free speech."

DR. C. A. EATON CHARGES BOCHE WOMEN ARE CRUEL

New York, Oct. 28. — Protesting against the sentiment that it is the Kaiser alone and not the German people, that the allies are fighting, Dr. Charles A. Eaton in a sermon at the Madison Avenue Baptist Church declared that German women had been known to spit in the faces of wounded American soldiers. He also told of an American soldier whose arm had been amputated and who, when he pleaded for water, was first handed a glass of water and then not allowed to drink it.

COLT'S RECORD ATTACKED BY O'SHAUNESSY

Democratic Candidate for Senate from R. I. Charges Opponent Unfriendly to Wilson

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 28.—If rally crowds and enthusiasm are any criterion, then George F. O'Shaunessy, Democratic candidate for United States senator, and Alberic A. Archambault, Democratic candidate for Governor, have a splendid chance of being elected in this Republican-machine-ridden State, for they certainly "went big" as the theatrical press agents say, at the several meetings they addressed.

Candidate O'Shaunessy is submitting the following proposition to the people as the great, vital issue of the campaign:

"The program for a lasting world peace and plans for progressive reconstruction after the war must be prepared for President Wilson, and the question of whether he shall be helped or hindered is to be settled by the voters on November 5. It is for them to say whether it will be for the people's interests to have him surrounded in the House and Senate of Congress by friends or enemies."

COLT'S RECORD ATTACKED.

The indictment returned against Senator Colt by Mr. O'Shaunessy is: That he is unfriendly to the President, because he voted to take the control of the war out of his hands, that he tried to stop the building of ships needed for the winning of the war; that he voted to subject organized labor to prosecution as criminals; that he voted for the Wall Street gamblers and against the Federal Reserve Bank system, the necessity for which the war has so completely proved; that he voted against an army and navy appropriation, soon after the sinking of the Lusitania, over the protest of which was to come from corporations' earnings; that he voted for the seven-hour law and against an eight-hour law; that he voted against the Federal Trade Commission, whose mission is to protect small business men and concerns against the unfair competition and other unscrupulous methods of trusts.

ARCHAMBAULT WINS FAVOR.

It is evident that Mr. Archambault is winning favor every place he speaks. He is presenting his claims for the people's votes with a clearness and directness that is convincing of his purpose and determination, if elected Governor, to right existing wrongs. He charges flatly that the Republican party is responsible for the increased street car fares, that it offers no hope of relief; that existing conditions will continue to exist so long as the Republican party is in power; but that he, with the help of Democratic members of the General Assembly, will apply the remedy which will bring about better service for passengers, good and guaranteed wages for the employes and reasonable and safe interest to the investors in State bonds.

The officials of the Democratic party are hoping that the Republicans will succeed in having ex-President Roosevelt return to Rhode Island and make speeches for the Republican candidates. If he cannot be induced to play a return engagement the Democrats hope that ex-Senator Beveridge of Indiana will be the imported Republican star performer. They say it would be great to listen to this man, who broke away from the party with Roosevelt and roasted it unmercifully, do a political flip-flop and attempt to praise the reactionaries he has so soundly denounced.

SAXTON'S TO QUERY T. R.

But the Democrats say they would welcome Teddy, because they would like to have him explain why he, in the light of some of his past utterances, is now criticising President Wilson and praising Republican candidates who have always been anything but progressive.

They would like to ask him if he is as proud now as he was four years ago of all the German blood that's in him and what he has to offer relative to the statement he made about four years ago that the fate of Belgium was no concern of this country.

"There is one remedy I always keep in the house, and that is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It helps my digestion wonderfully and as a laxative it is pleasant and dependable." (From a letter to Dr. Caldwell written by Mr. J. N. Kidd, Bells, Texas.)

From youth to age the greatest menace to health is constipation, which retards digestion and disturbs the entire organic system. To relieve constipation a mild laxative, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is preferable to drastic cathartics and purgatives, the violence of which shock the system unduly.

LONG POWERFUL AS PEOPLE'S CHAMPION

Thirty-three years ago Richard H. Long, a boy of fourteen, began work at a ready-to-wear shoe-making bench in his father's shop.

Today he is the Democratic standard bearer of the State.

The active, virile youth of two score years ago is now the vigorous and energetic executive. In the business world he is known as one of the leading manufacturers of New England; to the members of his party, the most powerful people's champion who has led them in years.

The viewpoint of the employe was gained by Long, the worker; the viewpoint of the business man and investor by Long, the manufacturer. He has run the gamut of experience that has qualified him to be the executive leader of the Commonwealth.

BORN IN SOUTH WEYMOUTH.

Richard Henry Long was born in South Weymouth on September 4, 1865, the third son of John and Ellen Long and the fourth child of eight children. He attended the public schools in his town, but of his own choice, and as he says "because I thought my help was needed," went to work just after he entered his teens.

Richard was twenty-four years old when he took charge of the shoe shop. The business was small. With little capital, except his experience, ability and aptitude for work, he transferred his business to Belchertown. There, in the middle of Winter, under adverse conditions, he began anew.

His employes were his friends and worked hard and faithfully for him. He toiled long hours for success. Under his genius the enterprise finally developed. Then, eighteen years ago, he moved to Framingham and leased a portion of the vacant Coburn-Bridges factory. His business expanded in a short time and soon he occupied the whole factory.

Subsequently he opened 120 specialty shoe stores in as many cities and towns of the country, selling shoes direct to the consumer. Then he built his present five-story factory, two-fifths of which is now occupied by him for the women employes in a radius of twenty-five miles of the factory. He serves 1,000 meals three times a day at pre-war prices. A band concert furnishes entertainment during the noon hour three times a week. A hospital is established in the plant and nurses are in attendance to care for the workers.

"I have worked at the bench. I know the troubles and cares of employes. Treat them fairly and they will do their part earnestly and happily," he said in one of his speeches.

Mr. Long has two prominent characteristics. He is a home man and a worker. His whole life is bound up in these two.

He was married in Braintree in 1891 to Mabelle H. Ferguld of that town. They have six children, two sons and four daughters. Richard is the manager of his factory, a lieutenant in the United States Ordnance Corps, detailed there by the government; Helen is aged 12; Mrs. Edwin S. Smith of Framingham is his oldest daughter; Miss Pauline, aged 23, a graduate of Bradford Academy, is a nurse in his factory hospital; Miss Virginia, aged 18, is a student at Bradford, and Mabelle, aged 10, is the "baby" of the family, except for the grandchild, Dorothy Smith, aged one year.

Mr. Long has two brothers and two sisters living. Charles J. Long is brigadier-general in the U. S. Marine Corps, the "First to Fight" organization, and John E. Long is a Boston manufacturer. He has one sister, Mrs. Matt W. Alderson of Montana, and another sister, Mrs. Louis M. Nuttman of Washington, D. C., wife of Brigadier-General Nuttman.

OFFERED SERVICES TO U. S.

When our country entered the war Mr. Long offered his services and his business to the government. The War Department asked him to undertake the manufacture of military equipment. Mr. Long was then doing a larger and more prosperous business than ever before. But he at once converted his big plant into a military supplies manufactory.

Almost overnight his machinery was set to make thousands of saddles, thousands of leggins and thousands of tents, cots and cartridge belts. The speed with which he turned them out enabled the War Department to carry on its shipment of troops overseas without delay.

His interest in public welfare legislation extended from affairs in his home town to affairs of the nation.

Mr. Long is a Democrat "by nature," he smilingly says. He supported Bryan in 1896 and in all his campaigns. He is a friend and adviser of President Wilson and was one of the three men entrusted with the management of Wilson's campaign in Massachusetts for re-election in 1916.

STOOD BY DANIELS.

He stood by Secretary Daniels of the navy when Daniels had few friends in New England. He supported every Democratic candidate for Governor, beginning with William E. Russell, in all their campaigns. He took the stump for Congressman John J. Mitchell in the first election after Woodrow Wilson was made President.

Mr. Long advocates and supports the Initiative and Referendum. He advocates a 48-hour law for women and children, regulation of monopolies, public control of public utilities, strong anti-trust laws and a just system of compensating men and women whose strength and health have been impaired by the high speed of machinery in modern industry. He further advocates the development of our industrial resources in order to have a place ready for every soldier upon his return from overseas. He is opposed to the lobbying as carried on at the State House in Massachusetts. In brief, Mr. Long has always been and is today a liberal and progressive Democrat.

ISSUE SAME AS IN '98, SAYS WALSH

Former Governor Appeals for Sustaining of President's War Policy

The re-election of United States Senator John W. Weeks will be a repudiation of the war policies of President Wilson, former Governor David I. Walsh says in a statement issued from his headquarters. No other construction will be placed upon such an act in view of the hostile attitude of Senator Weeks toward the conduct of the war and the Wilson administration, he declares.

The issue is the same now as it was when Senator Lodge raised it in '98 during the term of the late President McKinley—support the President. Though the Republican machine leaders deny to the delegates of that party the right to meet in convention and declare their support of this war, the great rank and file of that party will not be mute when they go to the ballot box on November 5, he points out.

The statement reads:

SUPREME ISSUE OF HOUR.

"Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, addressing the Republican State convention at Boston, October 6, 1898, during the Spanish War, said: 'The great question which confronts us today is whether we shall stand by the Administration and the President at this juncture. If we give a victory to his opponents we say that the people of the United States repudiate the war, repudiate its results and repudiate the man who has carried us through the war—William McKinley.'

"Within the hour that Mr. Lodge's speech was delivered that convention adopted a platform pledging unreserved support to the National Administration in the conduct of the Spanish War and in the peace negotiations which were about to be undertaken. The issue then raised is the supreme issue of this hour.

"This is the first political campaign since the declaration of war in April, 1917, when opportunity is given to declare the people's will upon national issues in the election of a Senator and Representatives in Congress, and yet we are treated to the amazing spectacle of a great political party going to the people in this State without a single declaration upon the great principles for which our boys are dying at the front.

"By what authority did the Republican machine leaders deny to the delegates of that great party the opportunity to meet in convention and declare their support of this war and to make clear their attitude upon the important issues which are pending for decision?

WILSON'S POWER AFFECTED.

"The power and influence of President Wilson during the war and at the peace conference after the war, not only upon our enemies, but also with our Allies, will be affected seriously and materially by the attitude which the American people show toward him in this contest. Our Allies and our enemies have a right to and will ask the questions, 'Does he hold the confidence of the American people? Is he their representative or has he ceased to represent what they believe?' The answer to these questions in a republic like ours can be made only through the ballot box, and the election on November 5 will determine to a high degree his influence in the future conduct of the war and at the peace table where the destinies of the nations will be settled.

"If the election returns of November 5th mean that a Republican Senate and a Republican House of Representatives is to supersede a Democratic Congress, the message to England, France and Italy will be this—'The President has ceased to speak authoritatively with the voice of the American people. His policies have been repudiated by the electorate. The people of the United States have given the control of Congress to his political opponents.' The people of Europe will draw no fine distinctions, nor would we if the electorate of England or France made the majority of their legislative bodies of a different political party from their war leaders.

PLEDGES AID TO WILSON.

"I pledge you that if elected to the Senate, I shall endeavor with all the ability and strength which I possess to assist our great war leader, President Wilson, in the prosecution of the war, and in the solution of those great problems which will be fraught with such tremendous consequences to our people when peace shall come.

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels will come to Massachusetts on Wednesday to urge upon the voters the necessity of electing David I. Walsh, Richard H. Long and the Democratic candidates to sustain President Wilson in this crisis.

Word was received from Secretary Daniels today that he will arrive in Boston before noon on Wednesday. It is planned to have an early luncheon for him at which Mayor Peters will preside.

Secretary Daniels will be the chief speaker at a big rally which will follow a dinner in his honor at the City Club on Wednesday evening. The dinner will be proceeded by a reception to the visiting navy head for which the arrangements are now being made by Democratic campaign workers of Boston and vicinity.

SPEAKS TO 800 WORKERS.

Mr. Walsh addressed nearly 800 employes at the Quartermaster's Corps, the old Ford building in Cambridge, at noon and was given an enthusiastic reception. Both candidates express themselves as greatly pleased by the promise of the Democratic City Committee to "give Long and Walsh 30,000 plurality in Boston." Among the other speakers at tonight's meetings will be Judge Riley of Malden, ex-Mayor James J. Curley and other spellbinders.

Mr. Long and Governor Walsh will begin the last week of the campaign with rallies tonight in Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill. Their schedule for the week is as follows:

Monday—Evening, Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill.

Tuesday—Evening, Fall River, New Bedford and Taunton.

Wednesday—Evening, Boston rallies with Secretary of Navy Josephus Daniels as principal speaker.

Thursday—Evening, Worcester and Fitchburg.

Friday—Noon, General Electric plant in Pittsfield; afternoon, Adams, North Adams, Greenfield and Northampton; evening, Springfield, Holyoke and Westfield.

Saturday and Monday—In Boston.

Roosevelt's Viewpoint Different in 1898

Things have changed.

President Wilson asks his "fellow-countrymen" to sustain him with their ballots. Theodore Roosevelt says it's all wrong. But in 1898, when we were at war with a small and listless nation, T. R. thought differently.

Theodore Roosevelt, October 25, 1918:

"I have no comment just at this moment, but I will deal with the matter in a speech after I have had time to read the document, which all good Americans will regard as the most lamentable appeal ever made by a President during a great war . . ."

Theodore Roosevelt in 1898:

"Remember that, whether you will or not, your votes this year will be viewed by the nations of Europe from one standpoint only. They will draw no fine distinctions. A refusal to sustain the President this year will, in their eyes, be read as a refusal to sustain the war and to sustain the efforts of our peace commission to secure the fruits of war. It will give heart to our defeated antagonists; it will make possible re-interference of those doubtful neutral nations who in this struggle have wished us ill."

$5,000,000 PLUS TO BE GREATER CITY'S QUOTA

Metropolitan Committee Gives Out Figures in United War Work Drive

Frank W. Remick, of Kidder, Peabody & Company, chairman of the Metropolitan District of the United Work Campaign Committee, announced today Metropolitan Boston's share in the coming campaign November 11 to 18 as $5,000,000 plus 50 per cent. Mr. Remick explains that the extra 50 per cent. has been added following the suggestion of President Wilson and the War Department, due to the fact that the needs of the army and navy have reached far greater proportions than the heads of the seven co-operating organization dreamed when they made up their original budgets for the campaign.

"This makes the task of Metropolitan Boston a tremendous one," said Mr. Remick. "It means that Metropolitan Boston banks alone will be asked to give almost as much as all New England gave in the last Red Cross drive."

The following tables show that the quota of twenty-six wards of Boston amouts to $3,305,500 plus the 50 per cent. War Chest cities and towns also noted in the table below, have already raised their amounts. The quotas follow:

Catholics Prepare for Their Part in Coming United War Work Drive

Boston Catholics have already begun organization of their forces which will carry on the campaign for $250,000,000 in the United War Work Drive, to be held November 11 to 18. At a preliminary meeting in the St. Alphonsus Theatre building, Roxbury, five speakers urged the need of a perfect organization in order to obtain the quota of the Catholics.

Francis E. Slattery, Rev. Augustine F. Hickey, Joseph T. Brennon, Hugh A. Carney and Lieutenant Paul F. Hines were the speakers. Only two more Sundays intervene before the opening of the drive and Catholics will be busy with preliminary work during the next two weeks.

'RHODE ISLAND'S FARE INCREASE ILLEGAL'

Cranston Solicitor Declares Public Commission Acted Beyond Jurisdiction

Providence, Oct. 28.—Three reasons were advanced today before the Supreme Court by City Solicitor Frank H. Wildes of Cranston against the granting of the fare increase by the Public Utilities Commission recently. In addition to opposition by Cranston, these communities are also being heard today: North Providence, East Providence, Warwick and Johnston.

The first reason Mr. Wildes advances is that the Public Utilities Commission has no jurisdiction in the matter because of an agreement made between the City of Cranston and the Rhode Island Company in 1893 which was made perpetual by the Legislature in 1898. Secondly he alleges that the raising of the fares is discriminatory and tends to depopulate the country districts.

He contends that the rate granted outside of Providence makes the fares higher than any other street railway in the country. His third contention is that the contract entered into in 1893 and perpetuated in 1898 is binding and cannot be broken by the Public Utilities Commission.

Mr. Wildes argued that the rates of fare paid before the recent increase was granted are satisfactory and should be kept in force. They consisted of a five-cent fare within a two-and-one-halfmile zone in the city of Providence and then a two-cent-a-mile zone outside it. Under the new grant the city zone is reduced to two miles and then there are a series of five-cent zones within the city limits. Outside the city limit mile zones are ordered.

SOUTH WEYMOUTH AIR MAN, TALBOT, KILLED

Taylor were killed when their bombing plane was brought down on the Belgian front. Norman lives at Davenport, Ia. Taylor's home was in Pelahatchee, Miss. Lieut. Ralph Talbot, pilot, was killed when his machine crashed to the ground while on an observation trip over the German lines in Belgium. His home was in South Weymouth, Mass.

Y. M. C. A. WORKERS IN PRISON AT MOSCOW

Washington, Oct. 28.—The State Department today received advices from Christiania, signed by Major Wardell of the Red Cross, announcing that Leonard and Vurri, Y. M. C. A. workers, had been taken to Moscow and confined in Lubiank prison. The Norwegian consul at Moscow reported the men were being well cared for and that he hoped to secure their release from prison within a few days.

SESSIONS RESUMED IN SUPERIOR COURT

The Superior Court of Suffolk County today resumed its work which has been delayed three weeks by the influenza. Eight sessions are to be devoted to jury trials and Judge Hall, who was to have had charge of the general and special lists, is also to hear jury-waived and divorce cases. This is a new departure and the experiment will be watched with interest.

FRENCH STARS ARE HEARD AT SYMPHONY

By FRED J. McISAAC.

With four concerts in three days, the musical season at Symphony Hall may be said to be under way. Yesterday afternoon an instrumental program of great attractiveness to music lovers was presented by Harold Bauer, pianist, and Jacques Thibaud, violinist.

Despite our professed admiration for things French, Thibaud, the first violinist of France and as skillful and inspired an artist as is now before the public, has never managed to catch the fancy of American concert goers as so many little Russian violinists have done.

And Bauer, fine piano virtuoso as he is, does not draw disciples in increasing numbers as the season goes by. There was only a fair audience for the joint concert yesterday afternoon, but those present enjoyed a beautiful performance.

Grieg's sonata in C minor for violin and piano, and the Franck sonata in A major were played by the two artists. Thibaud played Ysaye's Chant d'Hiver and Wieniawski's Polonaise in A, while Bauer played Chopin's Scherzo in B flat minor and Schumann's Papillons.

The ability of Galli-Curci to pack a hall shows no diminution. On Saturday afternoon Symphony was jammed with a multitude of star worshipers. She supplied an agreeable program which included arias from Puritani, "Barber of Seville" and "Louise," numbers from Handel and two groups of French songs.

The Italian numbers the little soprano sang with her customary brilliancy although her upper notes are already displaying dangerous signs of weariness. The "Depuis le Jour," one of the most passionate love songs ever written, was sung in a surprisingly colorless and passionless manner; on the other hand she sang her other French songs very charmingly. As usual, she was prodigal of encores and sang English ballads which delighted her audience.

SAILOR LOSES PURSE, FRIENDS LAND IN COURT

Claude A. Kastner, a sailor on the steamship Lake Buckeye, undergoing repairs at the Winnisimmet ship yards, Chelsea, had $100 in his pocket when he met Joseph Crosby, 35, of School street, and James A. Morse, 38, of Everett avenue, Chelsea. He says they asked him to visit a house on Beacon street, Chelsea, where he says they had several drinks and went to sleep. When he awoke his money was gone; also his two acquaintances. They were arrested. In court today Crosby was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction and appealed. Morse got three months and appealed.

EIGHT NEW CAPTAINS NAMED BY PRESIDENT

Washington, Oct. 28.—The President this afternoon sent the following nominations to the Senate: First lieutenants to be captains in the coast guard: William P. Kain, Floyd J. Sexton, Clement J. Todd, Gustavus U. Stewart, Joseph F. Farley, Jr., David R. Marvin, Carl H. Abel, Edward M. Webster. First lieutenants of engineers to be captains of engineers coast guard: Benjamin C. Burn, Milton R. Daniels, Ellis Reed-Hill, Francis C. Allen, Mayson W. Terhot, Gustavus R. O'Connor.

4 MEN ARE FINED FOR SWEARING AT POLICE

Four South Boston youths paid fines of $5 each in the South Boston district court today for using profanity to Patrolmen O'Regan, Nolan and Moser of Station 6. The four who paid fines for their indiscreet use of the King's English were Uriah Hobbs, an employe of the Quartermaster's Terminal on Summer street; John Ryan, Preston Pitts and William Farley.

FINED AND JAILED FOR TRYING TO AID PRISONER

In South Boston Court today Joseph A. This Day in History

THIS is the anniversary of the beheading of Sir Walter Raleigh, in 1618, at the behest of Spain. He was long a prisoner in the Tower of London, charged with conspiracy, and there wrote the "History of the World," one of the monuments of Elizabethan literature.

THE ZEPPELIN'S PASSENGER

An Exciting and Romantic New Spy Serial by E. Phillips Oppenheim

A German Spy Drops From the Clouds

SOUNDS incredible, but it isn't when you consider that Zeppelins have invaded England many times. This particular spy happened to drop near the home of Sir Henry Cranston, and, what's more, he brought letters from Lady Cranston's brother and Helen Fairclough's fiance, Major Felstead, a prisoner in a German camp. What were Lady Cranston and Helen to do? Give up the man who brought word from the man they were both longing to know was alive or shelter the bearer of this good news?

Read this absorbing serial day by day here, and you will agree that "The Zeppelin's Passenger," the latest of Mr. Oppenheim's fascinating novels, is also one of his most daring and most interesting. Begin the story today—follow it each day.

CHAPTER I.

"NEVER heard a sound," the younger of the afternoon callers admitted, getting rid of his empty cup and leaning forward in his low chair. "No more tea, thank you, Miss Fairclough. Done splendidly, thanks. No, I went to bed last night soon after eleven—the Colonel had been route marching us all off our legs—and I never awoke until reveille this morning. Sleep of the just, and all that sort of thing, but a jolly sell, all the same! You hear anything of it, sir?" he asked, turning to his companion, who was seated a few feet away.

Captain Griffiths shook his head. He was a man considerably older than his questioner, with long, nervous face, and thick black hair streaked with grey. His fingers were bony, his complexion, for a soldier, curiously sallow, and notwithstanding his height, which was considerable, he was awkward, at times almost uncouth. His voice was hard and unsympathetic, and his contributions to the tea-table talk had been almost negligible.

"I was up until two o'clock, as it happened," he replied, "but I knew nothing about the matter until it was brought to my notice officially."

Helen Fairclough, who was doing the honors for Lady Cranston, her absent hostess, assumed the slight air of superiority to which the circumstances of the case entitled her.

"I heard it distinctly," she declared; "in fact it woke me up. I hung out of the window, and I could hear the engine just as plainly as though it were over the golf links."

The young subaltern sighed.

"Rotten luck I have with these things," he confided. "That's three times they've been over, and I've neither heard nor seen one. This time they say that it had the narrowest shave on earth of coming down. Of course, you've heard of the observation car found on Dutchman's Common this morning?"

The girl assented.

"Did you see it?" she inquired.

Sent to London

"Not a chance," was the gloomy reply. "It was put on two covered trucks and sent up to London by the first train. Captain Griffiths can tell you what it was like, I dare say. You were down there, weren't you, sir?"

"I superintended its removal," the latter informed them. "It was a very uninteresting affair."

"Any bombs in it?" Helen asked.

"Not a sign of one. Just a hard seat, two sets of field-glasses and a telephone. It seems to have got caught in some trees and been dragged off."

"How exciting!" the girl murmured. "I suppose there wasn't any one in it?"

Griffiths shook his head.

"I believe," he explained, "that these observation cars, although they are attached to most of the Zeppelins, are seldom used in night raids."

"I should like to have seen it, all the same," Helen confessed.

"You would have been disappointed," her informant assured her. "By-the-by," he added, a little awkwardly, "are you not expecting Lady Cranston back this evening?"

"I am expecting her every moment. The car has gone down to the station to meet her."

Captain Griffiths appeared to receive the news with a certain undemonstrative satisfaction. He leaned back in his chair with the air of one who is content to wait.

"Have you heard, Miss Fairclough," his younger companion inquired, a little diffidently, "whether Lady Cranston had any luck in town?"

Helen Fairclough looked away. There was a slight mist before her eyes.

"I had a letter this morning," she replied. "She seems to have heard nothing at all encouraging so far."

"And you haven't heard from Major Felstead himself, I suppose?"

The girl shook her head.

"Not a line," she sighed. "It's two months now since we last had a letter."

Seems Cruel

"Jolly bad luck to get nipped just as he was doing so well," the young man observed sympathetically.

"It all seems very cruel," Helen agreed. "He wasn't really fit to go back, but the board passed him because they were so short of officers and he kept worrying them. He was so afraid he'd get moved to another battalion. Then he was taken prisoner in that horrible Pervais affair, and sent to the worst camp in Germany. Since then, of course, Phillipa and I have had a wretched time, worrying."

"Major Felstead is Lady Cranston's only brother, is he not?" Griffiths inquired.

"And my only fiance," she replied, with a little grimace. "However, don't let us talk about our troubles any more," she continued, with an effort at a lighter tone. "You'll find some cigarettes on that table, Mr. Harrison. I can't think where Nora is. I expect she has persuaded some one to take her out trophy-hunting to Dutchman's Common."

"The road all the way is like a circus," the young soldier observed, "and there isn't a thing to be seen when you get there. The naval airmen were all over the place at daybreak, and Captain Griffiths wasn't far behind them. You didn't leave much for the sightseers, sir," he concluded, turning to his neighbor.

"As commandant of the place," Captain Griffiths replied, "I naturally had to have the Common searched. With the exception of the observation car, however, I think that I am betraying no confidences in telling you that we discovered nothing of interest."

"Do you suppose that the Zeppelin was in difficulties, as she was flying so low?" Helen inquired.

"It is a perfectly reasonable hypothesis," the commandant assented. "Two patrol boats were sent out early this morning in search of her. An old man whom I saw at Waburne declares that she passed like a long, black cloud, just over his head, and that he was almost deafened by the noise of the engines. Personally, I cannot believe that they would come down so low unless she was in some trouble."

The door of the comfortable library in which they were seated was suddenly thrown open. An exceedingly alert-looking young lady, very much befreckled, and as yet unemancipated from the long plaits of the schoolroom, came in like a whirlwind. In her hand she carried a man's Homburg hat, which she waved aloft in triumph.

A Trophy

"Come in, Arthur," she shouted to a young subaltern who was hovering in the background. "Look what I've got, Helen! A trophy! Just look, Mr. Harrison and Captain Griffiths! I found it in a bush, not twenty yards from where the observation car came down."

Helen turned the hat around in amused bewilderment.

"But, my dear child," she exclaimed, "this is nothing but an ordinary hat! People who travel in Zeppelins don't wear things like that. How do you do, Mr. Somerfield?" she added, smiling at the young man who had followed Nora into the room.

"Don't they!" the latter retorted, with an air of superior knowledge. "Just look here!"

She turned down the lining and showed it to them.

"What do you make of that?" she asked triumphantly.

Helen gazed at the gold-printed letters a little incredulously.

"Read it out," Nora insisted.

Helen obeyed:

"Schmidt,
Berlin,
Unter den Linden, 127."

"That sounds German," she admitted.

"It's a trophy, all right," Nora declared. "One of the crew—probably the commander—must have come on board in a hurry and changed into uniform after they had started."

"It is my painful duty, Miss Nora," Harrison announced solemnly, "to inform you, on behalf of Captain Griffiths, that all articles of whatsoever description found in the vicinity of Dutchman's Common, which might possibly have belonged to any one in the Zeppelin, must be sent at once to the War Office."

"Rubbish!" Nora scoffed. "The War Office aren't going to have my hat."

"Duty," the young man began—

"You can go back to the Depot and do your duty, then, Mr. Harrison," Nora interrupted, "but you're not going to have my hat. I'd throw it into the fire sooner than give it up."

"Military regulations must be obeyed, Miss Nora," Captain Griffiths ventured thoughtfully.

"Nothing so important as hats," Harrison put in. "You see they fit—somebody."

The girl's gesture was irreverent but convincing.

"I'd listen to anything Captain Griffiths had to say," she declared, "but you boys who are learning to be soldiers are simply eaten up with conceit. There's nothing in your textbook about hats. If you're going to make yourselves disagreeable about this, I shall simply ignore the regiment."

The two young men fell into attitudes of mock dismay. Nora took a chocolate from a box.

When a Girl Marries

A New Serial of Young Wedded Life

By Ann Lisle.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Copyright, 1918, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A NEAT, dark-blue touring car was waiting in front of the apartment when our quartette reached the street.

"Nothing like a spin out into the country after a mid-day dinner," said Jim. "This is a sure-enough treat, Terry."

His tone had a touch of envy for Terry Winston, who owned the car and whose drive into the country was a matter of course; but that charming Englishman won my undying devotion by his reply:

"It's a treat to have you with me, matey. Will you let me have a visit with the Missis? That's it, sit in front, Mrs. Jimmie. It's a nice little car, but I'll wager Jim will be driving one that's a lot more spiffy by the time his ankle is strong enough to hold down the brakes."

Jim's other rich friends flung favors at him, but Captain Winston's assumption that Jim would come into his own as soon as he was over his wounds put us all on a happy basis of equality.

More than ever I hated myself for the pride that had led me to reject the offer of help from Betty, which I now felt came as much from the captain as from her. But I felt that I would only humiliate Jim if I went to her and told her I had changed my mind. "The mill will never grind again with the water that is past," and the opportunity to get help from these good friends was gone.

And so, as Captain Winston turned the car out toward green fields and open roads, regret rode with me. I did so want to enjoy myself—to delight in the smooth motor of the car, the pressure of a wind against my body, the crisp, pine-laden, salty air—but I couldn't.

Toward dusk we stopped at a little inn called "The Blue Dragon." Captain Winston said he wanted to telephone to a friend who lived in the neighborhood and who would probably offer us the hospitality of a fireside if he chanced to be at home.

"I'd like you to meet Norreys, Jimmie, old chap," said Terry Winston lightly, as he swung out of the car. But I saw him exchange a meaning glance with Betty, and I saved that name for future reference—Norreys.

An Invitation

A moment after Captain Winston went into the inn behold my brother Neal coming out and scampering across the road to our parking space.

"Hello, people! People, hello!" he called. "Lady Evelyn spied Jim from our table, and she says she'll never forgive you if you don't come in and join our party. You won't turn her down, will you?" Neal looked at me pleadingly.

"No, we won't turn you down," replied my husband good-naturedly. Then he presented Neal to Mrs. Bryce. For a moment Neal seemed swept off his feet by Betty's beauty and graciousness. But when she put out her scarred white hand he actually quivered with distaste. Even as a child he had always shrunk from wounds or any bodily disfigurement. And now, before he could conquer his feelings and take Betty's hand in his a crimson tide of embarrassment flooded her face. Betty was gravely hurt. Jim's eyes flashed. I fumbled for words.

There was an ugly moment—and then Terry Winston ran out to announce that Norreys was up in Canada and wouldn't return till late in the Fall, so we might as well stay at the Inn for dinner.

This delighted Neal. So it did big blond Terry himself; and in showing his delight with Terry, Neal showed also his best self—his boyish charm and enthusiasm. And when he had the privilege of taking us in and presenting Terry and Betty to his "Lady Evelyn," Neal airily blossomed out under the warmth of Evvy's delight at the big fish he had captured. Evvy actually cooed over Mrs. Bryce—it was quite evident that she regarded Betty as a great swell. And Betty seemed to forget her hurt of a few minutes before.

With the proud air of a successful hostess, Evelyn seated us at a table set for eight and insisted that we order, since Carlotta Sturges was always late. Evvy sat between Jim and Neal, but her wistful, wide blue eyes kept straying to the handsome English officer, who divided his attention impartially between Betty and me and seemed hardly aware of Evvy.

Ambassador Morgenthau's Story of German Plots

American Ambassador Goes to Rescue of Endangered French Sisters

CHAPTER XII. CONTINUED.
Invasion of Notre Dame de'Sio.

I awoke one November morning at 4 o'clock: I had been dreaming, or I had had a "presentiment," that all was not going well with the Sion Soeurs, a French sisterhood which had for many years conducted a school for girls in Constantinople. Madame Bompard, the wife of the French ambassador, and several ladies of the French colony, had particularly requested us to keep a watchful eye on this institution.

Though we had nothing more definite than an uneasy feeling that something might be wrong, Mrs. Morgenthau and I decided to go up immediately after breakfast. As we approached the building we noted nothing particularly suspicious; the place was quiet and the whole atmosphere was one of peace and sanctity. Just as we ascended the steps, however, five Turkish policemen followed on our heels.

"What do you want?" I asked, turning to the men. As they spoke only Turkish, naturally they did not understand me, and they started to push me aside. My own knowledge of Turkish was extremely limited, but I knew that the word "Elchi" meant "Ambassador." So, pointing to myself, I said:

"Elchi! Elchi! American."

This scrap of Turkish worked like magic. In Turkey an ambassador is a much revered object. Meanwhile the sisters had sent for their superior, Mere Elvira. This lady was one of the most distinguished and influential personages in Constantinople. That morning, as she came in quietly and faced these Turkish policemen, showing no sign of fear and completely overawing them by the splendor and dignity of her bearing, she represented to my eyes almost a supernatural being.

Mere Elvira was a daughter of one of the most aristocratic families of France. I could not help thinking, as I looked at her that morning, that there was only a diplomatic circle in the world to which she would not have added grace and dignity.

SITUATION UNDER CONTROL.

In a few seconds Mere Elvira had this present distracting situation completely under control. There were about seventy-two teachers and sisters in this convent; the police had orders to shut all these into two rooms, where they were to be held practically as prisoners.

There were about 200 girls; these were to be turned out into the streets, and left to shift for themselves. The fact that it was raining in torrents, and that the weather was extremely cold, accentuated the barbarity of this proceeding. Yet every enemy school and religious institution in Constantinople was undergoing a similar experience at this time.

Clearly this was a situation which I could not handle alone, and I at once telephoned my Turkish speaking legal adviser. Herein is another incident which may have an interest for those who believe in providential intervention. When I arrived in Constantinople telephones had been unknown, but, in the last few months, an English company had been introducing a system. The night before my experience with the Sion Soeurs, my legal adviser had called me up and proudly told me that his telephone had just been installed. I jotted down his number, and this memorandum I found in my pocket. Without my interpreter I should have been hard pressed, and without this telephone I could not have immediately brought him to the spot.

While waiting for his arrival I defined the operations of the policemen, and my wife, who fortunately spoke French, was obtaining all the details from the sisters.

"Have you any money and other valuables here?" Mrs. Morgenthau asked.

SISTERS' MONEY SAVED.

Yes, they had quite a large amount; it was kept in a safe upstairs. My wife told me to keep the policemen busy and then she and one of the sisters quietly disappeared from the scene. Upstairs the sister disclosed about a hundred square pieces of white flannel into each one of which had been sewed twenty gold coins. In all the Sion Soeurs had in this liquid form about fifty thousand francs. They had been fearing expulsion for some time and had been getting together their money in this form, so that they could carry it away with them when forced to leave Turkey.

Besides this the sisters had several bundles of securities, and many valuable papers, such as the charter of their school. Certainly here was something that would appeal to Turkish cupidity. Mrs. Morgenthau knew that if the police once obtained control of the building there would be little likelihood that the Sion Soeurs would ever see their money again. With the aid of the sisters, my wife promptly concealed as much as she could on her person, descended the stairs, and marched through the line of gendarmes out into the rain. She stepped into the waiting auto, was driven to the American Embassy, placed the money in its vaults, and promptly returned to the school.

Again Mrs. Morgenthau solemnly ascended the stairs with the sisters. This time they took her to the gallery of the Cathedral, which is next behind the convent, but could be reached through it. One of the sisters lifted up a tile from a particular spot in the floor, and again disclosed a heap of gold coins. This was secreted on Mrs. Morgenthau's clothes, and once more she filed past the gendarmes, out into the rain, and was driven safely to the Embassy. In these two trips my wife succeeded in getting the money of the sisters to a place where it would be safe from the Turks.

Between Mrs. Morgenthau's trips Bedri had arrived.

"We were going at it early in the morning and have it all over before you heard anything about it," he said with a laugh. "But you seem never to be asleep."

BEDRI FINALLY IMPRESSED.

"You are very foolish to try to play such tricks on us," I said. "Don't you know that I am going to write a book? If you go on behaving this way, I shall put you in as the villain."

This remark was an inspiration of the moment; it was then that it first occurred to me that these experiences might prove sufficiently interesting for publication. Bedri took the statement seriously, and it seemed to have a sobering effect.

"Do you really intend to write a book?" he asked, almost anxiously.

"Why not?" I rejoined. "General Lew Wallace was minister here—didn't he write a book? 'Sunset' Cox was also minister here—didn't he write one? Why shouldn't I? And you are such an important character that I shall have to give you a part. Why do you go on acting in a way that will make me describe you as a very bad man? These sisters here have always been your friends. They have never done you anything but good; they have educated many of your daughters; why do you treat them in this shameful fashion?"

This plea produced an effect; Bedri consented to postpone execution of the order until we could get Talaat on the wire. In a few minutes I heard Talaat laughing over the telephone.

"I tried to escape you," he said, "but you have caught me again. Why make such a row about this matter? Didn't the French themselves expel all their nuns and monks? Why shouldn't we do it?"

After I had remonstrated over this indecent haste Talaat told Bedri to suspend the order until we had had a chance to talk the matter over. Naturally this greatly relieved Mere Elvira and the sisters.

Bedri suddenly had a new idea. There was one detail which he had apparently forgotten.

"We'll leave the Sion Sisters alone for the present," he said, "but we must get their money."

Reluctantly I acquiesced in his suggestion—knowing that all the valuables were safely stowed in the American Embassy. So I had the pleasure of standing by and watching Bedri and his associates search the whole establishment. All they turned up was a small tin box containing a few copper coins, a prize which was so trifling that the Turks disdained to take it. They were much puzzled and disappointed, and from that day to this they have never known what became of the money. If my Turkish friends do me the honor of reading these pages, they will find that I have explained here for the first time one of the many mysteries of those exciting days.

NO SPRING TRIPS FOR TOSSERS

Hugh Fullerton Prophesies Clubowners Will Pass Up Jaunts Next Season

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

One of the biggest jokes of baseball will be eliminated to a great degree when the game is resumed, and one of the most fruitful sources of publicity will be cut down to the essentials.

The Spring training trip, as an institution practically will cease to be. No longer will teams be taken on long, expensive junkets South and West to "train" for the season. The owners and players alike have reached this conclusion.

The thing has been overdone and the small cities are weary of half-hearted exhibitions by try-out bushers. The expenses will be heavier than ever before and long junkets would cost too much.

Then the next generation of professional ball players will be workers. They will work all Winter instead of striving to live on the cheers saved up from the preceding season.

They will not have time to spend five or six weeks loitering in the South, and, further, they will report to their teams in better condition than they usually have been at the start of a season.

It is possible that the battery men and some of the pitchers will be sent somewhere for a couple of weeks, but the Spring barnstorming era is ended for a long time.

ONE OF CHANCE'S "BUGS."

What a lot of fun will be missed! In the Spring the teams always have with them the "nuts" and peculiar characters that the scouts have a habit of discovering. Sometimes I suspect those fellows dig up "bugs" merely for their advertising value, or else the minor league managers have a way of selling all their eccentrics to the big leagues.

In Chicago we had one back in the early part of this century who beat almost all records. He joined the club with two trunks, one partly filled with clothes and the other containing six one-gallon bottles of "strength medicine," which his mother had concocted.

It was made of many things, and he was to drink half a pint of it a day and become the strongest man in baseball.

That fellow was suspicious. He reached the practice grounds at Vicksburg, looked around cautiously, scratched a hole in the sand and buried his diamond ring. Then he filled his pipe, lighted it and started to practice.

Pretty soon Chance yelled at him to get back of the bat and warm up the pitchers, who were pitching to batters. He adjusted his mask, stuck his pipe through the wires and went to work. That finished his major league career.

EDGES IN AMONG SWELLS.

We accumulated another one named "Doc," who had been a barber and who claimed to be a pitcher. He had everything in the world except brains. Bert Briggs was with the team that Spring and the team was at Galveston, stopping at the best hotel in the city.

The first night the team was there some of the society people of the city were giving an exclusive dinner and dance. Briggs gently inquired of "Doc" whether he was going to the party. Doc said he was if the others were. Briggs helped him dress. The result was marvelous.

He had turned up a laydown collar, wore a flowing string tie, a colored shirt, a pair of light trousers, patent leather shoes with white tops, a salmon pink vest and a dress coat which Briggs borrowed from one of the negro waiters. Thus attired he strolled into the ball room and inquired of several gentlemen where the rest of the gang were.

STALLINGS RETURNS AND OLD RUMORS ARE RIFE

Manager George Stallings of the Braves is paying his second visit of the month to Boston. Early today report had it he was here to confer with Treasurer Arthur Wise and Business Manager Walter Hapgood over the sale of the local Nationals. The syndicate headed by ex-Mayor Curley is favored to secure control of the Braves if they change hands.

OVER MILLION FOR FUND FROM BOXING AIM OF JIM COFFROTH

Washington, Oct. 28.—Over $1,000,000 from boxing for the War Work Fund is the goal that has been set by Jim Coffroth.

Coffroth and W. W. Roper, secretary of the sporting committee of the United War Work campaign, were here today to confer with Dr. Joseph Raycroft, who is in charge of training camp activities.

Coffroth said that influenza was the only thing that could prevent boxing from going over the million-dollar mark.

He said it was not the intention to confine the tournaments to the week of November 11-18, but that they would be continued throughout the month of November.

Indoor Sports Crippled as Nation's Youth Are Over There

New York, Oct. 28.—Indoor athletic activity will be mighty quiet this war Winter. A few board floors may creak beneath the tread of flying feet, but they will be few and far between.

Most of the indoor athletics will probably be limited to the schoolboy classes. Only one club in the entire metropolitan district expects to give any serious consideration to the holding of an open meet, and that is the Millrose A. A.

The factor that looms large in the matter of holding open meets is the scarcity of material for the different events.

In another three months it is thought that the ranks of the amateur athletes will be so thoroughly thinned out by war service that it will be practically impossible to gather even bare skeleton fields for the open A. A. U. contests.

ARLINGTON GIRLS ELEVEN REVISE HOCKEY SCHEDULE

Girls' field hockey, which has proven so popular at quite a number of Greater Boston high schools, was badly hindered by the Spanish influenza epidemic. As a result, two schools, Malden and Milton High, have given up the sport for this season.

The schools supporting girl elevens are Arlington, Lexington, Newton, Winchester and Winthrop. The Arlington High girls were to play the Winchester girls this afternoon, Arlington was the scene of the game.

Miss Loraine Coolidge, manager of the Arlington High girls' eleven, announces the revised schedule, as follows:

November 8—Lexington High girls at Arlington; 12, Winchester High girls at Winchester; 18, Winthrop High girls at Arlington; 25, Winthrop High girls at Winthrop; 28 (morning), Lexington High girls at Lexington; (date pending), Newton High girls at Newton.

DONOVAN AND SACCO TOP SPICY PROGRAM AT C. A. C.

The Commercial A. C. has arranged just about its banner program of the Fall season for Friday night. Johnny Donovan and Sailor (Young) Sacco, two of the best lightweights hereabouts, hook up in the main muss. They have contracted to come in at 133 pounds. Bobby Josephs of the South End, and Al Gerard of the North End, meet in the semi-final, while George Brooks of Cambridge, and Burt Jones of Revere, will collide in one of the six-rounders. Matchmaker McKirdy has not yet booked the two battlers in the curtain-raiser.

HOPPE OPENS RED CROSS SERIES AT CITY CLUB

Willie Hoppe, champion of all billiardists, is due in Boston tomorrow for his four-day Red Cross engagement. He plays George Slosson at the City Club Wednesday. The afternoon game will start at 2:30 o'clock and the night match at 8. Saturday Hoppe will give two exhibitions at the B. A. A., while Thursday or Friday he will play at the Engineers' Club. The gross receipts from all games go to the Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross.

ENSIGN MASON OUT TO SEE HIS TEAM BEHAVE

Ensign Mason, athletic director at Lockwood's Basin, East Boston, has suspended his entire team for two weeks for its rough playing in last Wednesday's game with Dean Academy at Braves Field. What's more, he states he will see to it his players show good sportsmanship in all their remaining games, or he will ring down the curtain for good.

FORDHAM MAY CALL ON BOSTON COLLEGE NOV. 23

New York, Oct. 28.—Fordham has booked a football game with Georgetown for Thanksgiving Day. It will be played on Fordham Field. Fordham may battle Boston College in Boston November 23.

BOXING BRIEFS AND GOSSIP

FRANKIE BRINDISI of New Haven, Ct., accompanied by his manager, Tony Palozolo, dropped in at the AMERICAN and announced that he, Brindisi, was willing to meet Bobby Josephs at the Mattie Baldwin benefit. Any number of rounds will suit Frankie. Palozolo says his stable of boxers is ready to take part in the big Sport Drive.

CY GOODWIN also comes through and offers his services, as well as those of his battlers, Charley Parker and Charley Byers, for the Badwin benefit. Also for the Sport Drive.

THERE'LL BE some familiar names missing from the programs when the boys start boxing under their own name.

THIS IS to be another busy week for the fans, bouts being scheduled at the Arena, Commercial A. C., Marlboro Driving Club, Crescent A. C., Lowell, and two clubs in Portsmouth, N. H.

BATTLING HURLEY shows improvement with each bout. Another boy who appears to have the makings is Mickey Travers.

THOSE BIG leaguers, Johnny Dundee and Frankie Callahan, should make things hum at the Arena tomorrow night.

PADDY FENTON, the old-timer, offers his services at the big Sport Drive.

PAUL DOYLE, who showed local fans he could fight the night he went against Terry Brooks, is a versatile chap. Besides being a first-class boxer (and, by the way, he claims the lightweight championship of New England) Paul is a corking good roller skater, and a bear at making munitions for Uncle Sam. Doyle recently won the championship roller skating match between pugilists, at New Haven, Ct., capturing a $100 Liberty Bond along with the title.

RICHIE MITCHELL, who looked like a champion lightweight till he ran foul of Benny Leonard, is attempting to teach Joe Stecher, noted wrestler, the fine points of the boxing game. The teacher is capable, but the pupil is too well along in years to learn any new tricks.

WITH SECRETARY of War Baker, General Pershing and all his generals in favor of boxing, not to speak of all the soldier boys, who are practical admirers of the sport, the vote is almost unanimously aye.—New York Sun.

Ten Years Ago in Sport

AT the annual meeting of the Eastern League, held in New York, P. T. Powers was re-elected president, secretary and treasurer, and his salary raised to $5,000. Powers evidently was the original nothing to do, etc., man.

TOMMY QUILL of Brockton and Young Loughrey of Philadelphia went twelve rounds to a draw at the Armory A. C. Tommy tried everything he had in the line of punches, but Loughrey was with him at every turn. Quill landed one of his haymakers in the first round and Loughrey measured his length on the floor. Oh, boy! maybe Loughrey didn't crowd Tommy after that and bombard him when in close!

IN the semi-final, Twin Miller got off to a good start against Willie Reilly of South Boston. He did well for two rounds, but Willie began to find Twin and was cutting him to pieces when the latter fouled in the fifth round. Miller, of course, was disqualified. Big Jim Prendergast, Dorchester motorman (remember Jim?) disposed of Bill Warren, mammoth Australian, in less than a round.

JOHN WILLIE of Chicago says he's anxious to get another crack at Jack Blackburn. (What does he mean, another crack? If memory serves me right, it was Blackburn who did the cracking in their other set-to.)

JIMMY BRITT is scheduled to meet Johnny Summers, English boxer, in London, November 2. Two weeks later Rouse O'Brien of Boston takes on Summers. (Summers and Britt met, but we can find no record of Rouse ever hooking up with the Briton. Any of Rouse's friends know?)

TOMMY BURNS says his battle with Jack Johnson will be his farewell fight. (Gosh, but Jim Jeffries must be sore on Tommy for fighting the big black. The Burns-Johnson fight was the cause of Jeff's Waterloo.)

PHIL BROCK of Cleveland has returned from California, where he fought a number of battles. (No, he didn't win them all. That's because Freddie Welsh and Packey McFarland were among his opponents.)

JESSE WESTERGARD defeated Jim Parr, English wrestler, in two straight falls at Lowell.

IN the seventh game of the Class B billiard tournament, at the Hub, Dr. Carlos won from Franklin, 200-184.

HERE'S a few fight results that were due yesterday, and as we know your're curious to know the results, we'll slip 'em in today. Bartley Connolly and Bill McKinnon fought six hard rounds with honors even at Portland; Tommy Sullivan of Lawrence stopped Tommy Crawford in five rounds at Philadelphia; Dave Deshler and Johnny Marto fought a draw at New Haven, and Jack Morgan of Indianapolis put the kayo on Kid Lee in nine rounds. (Is this the same Kid Lee who's playing in the Gray League at the present time?)

NEPONSET—We will admit there are no fighters in Magoun Square. (They are all over in France.)

Billy Kelly and Eternal Meet in $30,000 Race at Laurel Course

Laurel Race Track, Md., Oct. 28.—Billy Kelly and Eternal were to settle the turf's juvenile championship for 1918 here this afternoon. It's at six furlongs, with each colt carrying 122 pounds.

The $10,000 each put up as sweepstakes by Commodore J. K. L. Ross of Montreal and James W. McClelland of Kentucky, the respective owners of Billy Kelly and Eternal, has been deposited in the form of bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan.

The $10,000 the Maryland State Fair Corporation adds to these sweepstakes will be put up in negotiable war paper of the same sort.

After the finish the owner of the winner will turn over $20,000 in bonds to the Red Cross. The Canadian organization will be the beneficiary if Billy Kelly wins; the Maryland chapter will get the money if Eternal outfoots and outstays his opponent.

Andrew Schuttinger will ride Eternal, while Earle Sande will have the leg up on Billy Kelly.

POLO LEAGUE CLUB FOR BOSTON AND CAMBRIDGE

Boston, Cambridge and Quincy were admitted to membership in the American Roller Polo League at a meeting in Providence. Worcester, Lowell and Providence complete the circuit. The Boston team is to hold forth at the Arena.

GEORGIA TECH TO PLAY PITT ON FORBES FIELD

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28.—The Georgia Tech football team will play here Saturday of Pittsburgh eleven here Saturday, November 23, for the benefit of the United War Work Fund.

SCRIMMAGING AT HARVARD TO START SOON

Starting this afternoon, the Harvard Naval football team was to have two sessions of practice daily. Two until 3.30 will be the time alloted for the first work, and from 3.30 until 5 o'clock those who cannot report earlier will be taken care of.

The candidates for the eleven are much in earnest over their team, and hope to be able to meet some worthy opponent in a contest, the receipts to go to the United War Work fund.

About forty men have been practising under Captain Goose Reilly during the past ten days, with Head Coach Donovan occasionally taking the squad in hand.

The first regulation scrimmage of the season is expected Wednesday and some of Harvard's former coaches will probably be on hand to help out. The rush lines of both teams appear evenly matched as to weight, and the backfields for speed also seem to be a toss-up.

The President's Appeal for Support

Not Party Spirit, but Patriotic Purpose Shines in Every Sentence.

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

Why should not the President appeal to the country to return a majority of the members of his own party to both houses of Congress?

Who better than President Wilson is entitled to ask a vote of confidence of the nation, and how could he, himself, better show confidence in the patriotism of the people than by asking frankly for their verdict upon his course in the prosecution of the war?

For that, after all, is what it amounts to. As Commander-in-Chief of the Army and the Navy of the United States, President Wilson has been supremely responsible for all that has been done by our armed forces by flood or field.

Has it been well done? If so, there is no way in which the people can this year testify to their satisfaction with the work than by making their vote for the President's party a vote of confidence in him.

We do not elect a President this year, but we do elect a new Congress. And we can show our confidence or lack of confidence in the President only by voting FOR or AGAINST his party.

We do not believe that it is at all the desire of President Wilson to make of EVERY individual candidacy a test of approval of his administration. He has shown often enough, and vigorously enough, his readiness to contribute to the defeat of members of his own party who have failed in their duty to the nation in this critical moment. Mere membership in the Democratic party has not been for him a sufficient excuse for indifference or lukewarmness in the support of American activities in war, and the maintenance of the integrity and the dignity of the nation.

Beyond doubt, there are in this and that district Democratic candidates for the House of Representatives, or in this State or that Democratic nominees for the Senate whose records have not been such as to justify entire confidence that if elected they would help to enforce the proposition that "the nation should give its undivided support to the Government under a unified leadership."

But these are individual cases; they are but few, and are widely scattered throughout the country. On the broad general proposition that the President would be more unfettered in his future conduct of the war and in his participation in the peace proceedings which are to be very shortly initiated, if he shall have the support of a Congress of his own political complexion in both houses, THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT.

It is our opinion that President Wilson emphatically deserves from the country such a vote of confidence. It is our conviction that the great services he has already rendered to the United States and its associates and allies now struggling for the cause of democracy in Europe will be the more effectively continued if backed by a strong majority in Congress in thorough political accord with his views.

We have no doubt, nor has President Wilson himself, that among Republicans in House and Senate he will find in the future, as he has in the past, many able, patriotic supporters of his war policies. Indeed, it would be a sorry thing for that party if the fact were otherwise. But however in sympathy Republican legislators may be with the President on the broader and more general issues of the war, there will be inevitable dissension on details. As the President very properly says:

> "THIS IS TIME NEITHER FOR DIVIDED COUNSEL NOR FOR DIVIDED LEADERSHIP. UNITY OF COMMAND IS AS NECESSARY NOW IN CIVIL ACTION AS IT IS UPON THE FIELD OF BATTLE. IF THE CONTROL OF THE HOUSE AND SENATE SHOULD BE TAKEN AWAY FROM THE PARTY NOW IN POWER, AN OPPOSING MAJORITY COULD ASSUME CONTROL OF LEGISLATION AND OBLIGE ALL ACTION TO BE TAKEN AMID CONTEST AND OBSTRUCTION."

There is, moreover, to be considered the effect abroad of a verdict hostile to the President rendered at the polls next month. We in the United States understand how many factors contribute to the determination of a Congressional election. But in the country of the Central Powers a defeat of the President's party at this juncture will be looked upon absolutely as a repudiation of the President's policy.

The election comes Tuesday, November 5. Unless the negotiations for an armistice which were launched by Germany shall proceed with unexampled and unexpected rapidity, the discussion of peace will be at its height at the time the judgment of the American people upon the Presidential policy will be made public.

Should by any chance that judgment be unfavorable, the effect in Europe will be little less than disastrous. It would, as the President himself says, "be interpreted on the other side of the water as repudiation of his (my) leadership." The people of the enemy nations would, as Mr. Wilson says, "find it very difficult to believe that the voters of the United States had chosen to support their President by electing to the Congress a majority controlled by those who are not in fact in sympathy with the attitude and action of the Administration."

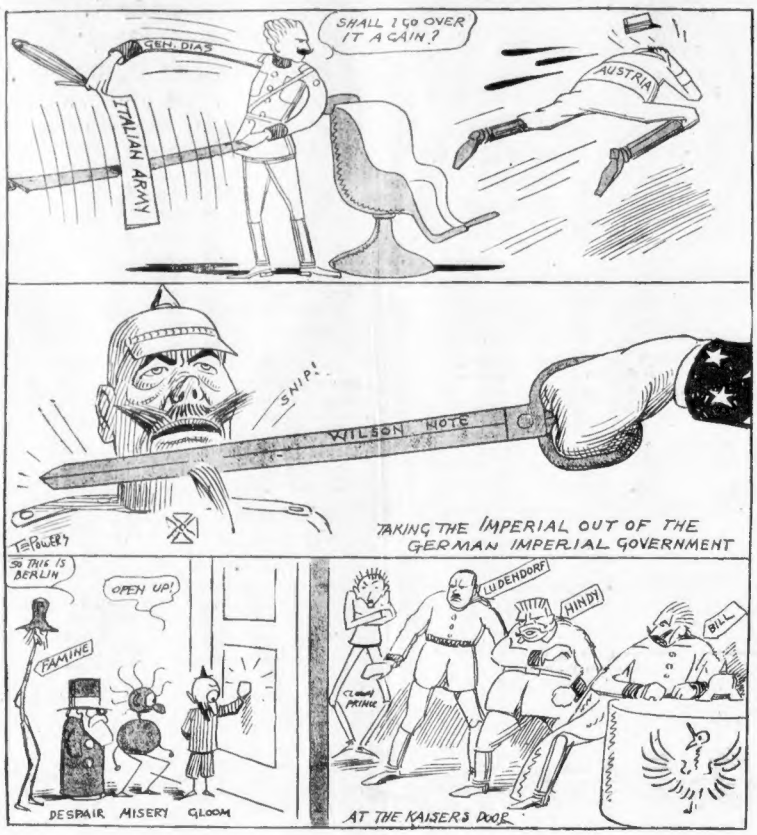

The President's urgency in this matter is thoroughly justifiable. His argument is coherent, logical and convincing. We cannot conceive that the people will interpret an act so plainly dictated by a wise forethought for the needs of the Government in the most critical period of the war as merely a piece of partisan generalship. It is NOT POLITICS, IT IS PATRIOTISM.

The President voices not the desire of a partisan leader for a merely partisan victory at the polls, but expresses the natural and the patriotic appeal of a chief executive upon whose shoulders will rest the responsibility for winning the war, and for securing for humanity the fullest fruits of our victory, for the united support of the nation which he leads, and so, leading, serves.

We urge upon American citizens the careful and unprejudiced study of the President's appeal, with minds purged of any partisan prejudice and open to recognition of its patriotic purport.

David Lloyd George and Unified Command

Field Marshal Foch, the great commander-in-chief of all the allied forces, told the world definitely the other day that he received his present commanding position through the insistence of David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister.

We know that David Lloyd George's insistence upon a unified command under a French chief was strongly backed by President Wilson and our army staff. But the real courage of the change was exercised by Lloyd George. A great, powerful faction in Great Britain was opposed to unified command under a French officer. It took not only statesmanship but political bravery for Lloyd George to face down this faction and to subordinate the British armies to a French commander.

That the world owes a debt to Lloyd George and to those who supported him in his determination to make Foch commander-in-chief of all the allied forces is now apparent. In this one act Lloyd George has demonstrated the force and the courage which made him one of the world's great statesmen when as a mere member of Parliament he was fighting the democratic causes against British toryism.

ALL MY life.
I'VE BEEN forgetful.
AND COULDN'T remember.
AND I saw an ad.
ABOUT A memory course.
AND A set of books.
THAT IF you'd read them.
AND STUDY them hard.
YOU COULD remember names.
AND TELEPHONE numbers.
AND LISTS of groceries.
OR ANY old thing.
AND I sent five dollars.
AND GOT the books.
AND BEGAN to study.
AND THE way you do it.
TO REMEMBER things.
IS TO make little pictures.
IN YOUR mind.
AND TIE them up.
WITH THE name of the man.
OR WHATEVER it is.
THAT YOU want to remember.
AND JUST supposing.
IT WAS Colonel House.
AND PRESIDENT Wilson.
HAD JUST introduced you.
YOU'D THINK of a house.
WITH THE Colonel's face.
LOOKING OUT of the window.
AND YOU'D never forget.
AND IT works all right.
EXCEPT ONCE in a while.
WHEN YOU meet a man
LIKE WILLIAM Small.
AND INTRODUCE him.
AS WILLAM Little.
AND I did that.
AND I'M on a committee.
WITH A lot of neighbors.
AND THERE'S Mr. Coney.
AND I made a mind picture.
OF AN amusement park.
AND THE next time I met him.
I COULD see the picture.
OF THE amusement park.
AND I was so pleased.
I RUSHED right up.
AND CALLED him Mr. Luna.
AND THERE'S a Mrs. Paine.
AND WHEN I met her.
I THOUGHT of pains.
AND MADE a picture of a man.
ALL DOUBLED up.
WITH PAINS in his stomach.
AND AT the next meeting.
I HAD to introduce her
TO A new member.
AND I called her Mrs. Cramps.
AND I was so embarrassed.
I GOT all mixed up.
AND THERE was another lady.
BY THE name of Mrs. Ash.
AND I called her Mrs. Cann.
AND ALTOGETHER.
IT WAS a very bad night.
FOR MY memory course.
BUT IT'S all right.
AND I'M getting along.
AND I remember everything.
EXCEPT THAT once in a while.
I GET mixed on the picture.
AND I see a Mr. Bird.
INSTEAD OF a Mr. Swann.
OR SOMETHING like that.

I THANK you.

SOUND SENSE FROM AN EXPERT ON PUBLICITY

By Val Fisher,

Member of London Chamber of Commerce and American Chamber of Commerce in London

Following are excerpts from a speech delivered in New York by Val Fisher, English expert, urging larger advertisers to keep their goods before the public continually, to prepare for competition after the war.

WHAT are you going to do with your acres and acres of enlarged factory space now employed in the making of war products all over America if you don't build good will now for the goods you are going to make when the war is won? How are you going to keep the smoke coming out of your factory chimneys after peace is declared if you don't keep your name constantly before the public now and build a demand for your peace-time products that will insure a satisfactory business the minute you stop making munitions or other war supplies?

BRITISH MANUFACTURERS WHO HAVE NOT A DOLLAR'S WORTH OF MERCHANDISE TO SELL, WHOSE ENTIRE PLANTS ARE EMPLOYED ON GOVERNMENT WORK, ARE KEEPING THEIR ADVERTISING CONTINUOUSLY BEFORE THE PUBLIC, because while they are perfectly willing to turn their profits over to the government, while they are perfectly willing for the sake of winning the war to have their factories commandeered and their normal business completely stopped, yet they are not willing to sacrifice their good will; they are not willing to have their names or their products forgotten. And so they continue their advertising, continue building their good will, so that when the war shall be won there will be an immediate demand for the billions of dollars' worth of merchandise that their greatly enlarged factories will then turn out.

Retail Stores

The experience of Britain's retail stores contains an object lesson which should not be lost on the business men of America. DURING THE FIRST FEW MONTHS OF THE WAR MANY STORES CUT DOWN THEIR ADVERTISING. BUT SELFRIDGE DID NOT. HE DID NOT SKIP A SINGLE DAY. HE USED ALL THE SPACE THE PAPERS WOULD ALLOW HIM TO USE AND HAS CONTINUED TO DO SO. The result was that Selfridge's profits during the first year of the war were $573,000; during the second, $750,000, and during the third year $1,125,000.

The war has taught the manufacturers and business men of Britain that advertising is not only the least expensive way to sell goods, but that it also has the far more important function of building good will—a good will whose benefits, especially in critical times, can hardly be measured. Moreover, you Americans must not forget your opportunities for foreign trade. Millions of people in Great Britain and France and Italy and Central and South America will be looking to you for American-made goods when the war is over. Those of you who are best prepared, those of you whose good will is most firmly established, will reap the greatest benefit.

London Profits.

The profits of the twelve leading London department stores during the period of war were as follows:

Fiscal year 1914-15, profits, $4,950,000.
1915-1916, $4,250,000.
1916-17, $5,575,000.

In the Provinces the profits of the nine leading stores were:

1914-15, $750,000.
1915-1916, $945,000.
1916-17, $1,150,000.

In the wholesale trade the seven largest British houses increased their profits from $3,429,000 in 1914-15 to $5,885,000 in 1916-17.

In the grocery trade our leading chainstore firm made a profit of $2,213,755 in 1916-17 and increased it to $3,736,000 in 1917-18, the latter figure being $1,000,000 per annum over their average for the previous five years.

I WANT TO WARN YOUR MANUFACTURING AND EXPORT HOUSES THAT NOW IS THE TIME TO PREPARE FOR PEACE. I find a tendency here to neglect preparations for export trade until peace has been declared. There could not be a greater mistake. Now is not the time to export, but most emphatically now is the time to lay your plans and build good will.

Americans Die Too Early. Bolshevism Locked Up. Vote For or Against the War. Henry Ford (Henri Quatre).

—By Arthur Brisbane—

You are urged by sincere Republicans to elect Senators and Representatives that will criticise and harass the President, who carries your responsibilities.

If you had lived in the days of Lincoln, would you have sent to Washington men to SUPPORT Lincoln or to criticise and oppose him?

Woodrow Wilson is doing for the world today what Lincoln did for America in his war. President Wilson's work is done to the satisfaction of the American people.

No man and no country will suffer for putting patriotism ahead of partisanship in war.

The Chicago Tribune in a fine editorial flight says:

"Henry Ford is the complete antithesis of such an American Samurai as Roosevelt."

You can't make Henry Ford mad that way. The business of the Samurai two-sword gentlemen was to keep the common people in order, chop off their heads if necessary to protect the noble class in their special privileges.

Ford wouldn't be a Samurai if he could. Henry the Ford wishes to go Henry the Fourth one better. The French Henry wanted every Frenchman to have a chicken cooking on the stove.

The Detroit Henry wants every American to have an automobile in his garage. Not a bad ambition.

The Michigan farmer and mechanic don't know much about Samurai, Daimio or Ronin. But they know a lot about "The Flivver King," and they will elect Ford United States Senator a week from tomorrow.

One trouble with Germany appears to be bankruptcy, or something near it.

A man is bankrupt when the interest on what he owes exceeds his income. Interest on the German government debt, according to financial owls, exceeds the income of the German government. That makes the outlook gloomy for those that expect to get back their principal.

During the past three months the German Imperial Bank printing press has turned out 4,000,000,000 marks in new paper money.

But paper isn't money unless something is back of the paper. And if all that new money were solid gold, Woodrow Wilson could still say to the Kaiser what Solon, the wisest man, said to Croesus, the richest king: "If another king comes who has better iron than you, he will be master of all this gold."

Young American kings, 2,000,000 of them, are in France bound for Berlin. They carry the "better iron."

Theodore Roosevelt celebrated his sixtieth birthday yesterday, strong, youthful, full of energy. The people are glad of it. They will still need excitement and heroism after the war, and Colonel Roosevelt is a hero 365 days in each year. The sad thing is that to find a man powerful and aggressive at sixty amazes us.

Colonel Roosevelt is seven years younger than Foch, leading the fighters of the world.

He is twenty years younger than Gladstone was when he did his best fighting and thirty years younger than Pope Leo when he was managing the affairs of a great organization, attending to business every day and writing excellent verse in Latin.

Clemenceau, the Fighting Tiger of France, is twenty years older than Roosevelt.

British statesmen are not considered really seasoned for important work until they reach the age of sixty. Americans are considered ready for the graveyard at about fifty-eight. That ought to be changed. The war has taught us that victory is won by brain, not mere muscle, and that the brain continues to grow in power fifty years after the muscles decline.

News from Turkey, tired of war, ready for any kind of peace, means that Constantinople will be controlled by the civilization of Western Europe—and the United States.

Control of Constantinople and the Dardanelles means holding the key to Russia's most important door. Until she comes to her senses and gets over the Bolshevik debauch, Russia will not be able to take her ships or her theories into the Mediterranean.

England holding one door at Gibraltar, the Allied nations of the world the other at the Dardanelles, civilization can continue to develop along the Mediterranean shores now as for centuries past, without interruption from the queer, newly-hatched and quite insane Russian "freedom."
